Friends of Photography to move out of town

By ANNE PAPINEAU

THE FRIENDS OF Photography, headquartered in offices at Carmel's Sunset Center since 1967, will move to a 24,000-square-foot facility in San Francisco, its executive director announced.

In tribute to a founding member and master photographer, the facility will be named the Ansel Adams Center.

The Friends of Photography Board of Trustees reached the decision unanimously at its March 8 meeting, according to Executive Director Jim Alinder.

An early 1988 moving date has been set by the non-profit organization, which is devoted to support of creative fine art photography. Plans call for the Ansel Adams Center to be built on Pier 1 at Fort Mason. Located within the Golden Gate National Recreation Area, Fort Mason lies on San Francisco's northern waterfront between Fisherman's Wharf and the Golden Gate Bridge.

Early designs for the center, which will serve as headquarters for The Friends, depict four major exhibition galleries, a photography studio, lecture halls, cafe, publishing area, demonstration darkroom, offices and library.

"The search for new headquarters started while Ansel Adams was alive," noted Alinder, who has served as director since 1977. "He proposed that we find a new headquarters at a trustees' meeting in March 1984. He died just over a month later. It was the trustees' feeling that we should not only find a new space but it should be named after Adams."

The Friends of Photography presently occupies a 950-square-foot gallery and 700-square-foot office in Sunset Center, said Sunset Center Director Richard Tyler.

According to Alinder, the Friends' "long ago outgrew" both its offices and gallery.

"We have had as many as three people working in what was to be my office. I think any reasonable person would say that is not the most efficient use of staff. You see things in the hallways that should be in storage areas. When we prepare to award one of our grants, photographers' portfolios are stacked everywhere," Alinder said.

The Friends of Photography was founded in 1967. Today, with more than 17,500 members internationally, it is the world's largest non-profit organization devoted to fine art photography.

The Friends sponsors photography workshops and traveling exhibitions. It publishes books and a newsletter, awards grants to emerging talents and presents honors to established artists. Annual budget for the organization is "a little over $1 million," Alinder noted.

SITE OF NEW HEADQUARTERS for The Friends of Photography will be the Ansel Adams Center, situated in view of the Golden Gate Bridge on Pier One of the Fort Mason Center in San Francisco. The facility will be completely renovated and plans call for it to house four galleries, a publishing center, demonstration darkroom, photography studio and offices. The center will house a permanent, changing exhibit of the photographs of Ansel Adams.

To offset the space squeeze at Sunset Center, the Friends rents offices a block away in addition to a warehouse in Monterey.

"Our exhibition program has suffered the most," Alinder said of the cramped quarters. Some 200 shows have been presented in the gallery in the last two decades. Floor plans for the Ansel Adams Center outline four galleries that would concurrently highlight the works of several artists.

"That will make ours one of the largest photo exhibition spaces in the world," Alinder said. "There will be more than 200 photographs on display at any given time."

The Ansel Adams Gallery will house changing exhibitions of Adams' works. Adams, born in the city that will house the center, was a founding member of Group f-64, a pioneer group devoted to creative photography. He was also co-founder of The Friends of Photography. The environmentalist/photographer made his home in Carmel Highlands from 1962 until his death two years ago.

The San Francisco Bay Gallery would showcase images by artists from the five-county San Francisco Bay Area, a region Alinder cited as providing "an almost endless supply of historic and contemporary artists." Major changing exhibitions would hang in the Exhibition Gallery, while the Discovery Gallery is designed to feature one-person shows by emerging artists.

"We currently have about 12,000 visitors per year (at the Carmel gallery)," Alinder noted. "We have had studies completed on how many people would visit our San Francisco galleries, and the minimum was determined to be 100,000 per year. Another opinion is that we will have 500,000 annually."

Construction on the center is slated to begin in 1987. Projected cost of the project is $2 million, Alinder said. It requires renovation of the entire upper level of Pier 1, now used as a National Parks Service maintenance facility.

New system of law?

Dear Editor:

In 1985 the city of Carmel won two important court decisions in Superior Court concerning proposed overdevelopment of the Odello property: one, by Judge Richard Silver, ordered Monterey County Supervisors to draw up a new Carmel Valley Master Plan; another, by Judge John Phillips, ordered the Coastal Commission to reconsider its approval of the Odello development.

In the face of these court decisions, which have the power of law, the Carmel City Council decided on May 6, 1986 by a 3-2 vote to set aside all suits concerning the Odello property. That this action is illegal seemed not to sway the mayor, who appeared bent upon setting up a new Eastwood System of Common Law. In referring to the court decisions, the mayor stated: "That doesn't make them right; that's just their opinion. Having stated that, I hope I don't have to go before those judges."

Superior Judge Richard Silver has set the record straight, indicating that the action of the Carmel City Council is a moot point, and the council's action will not affect his previous ruling.

Perhaps Mayor Eastwood should attend some court sessions having to do with the public interest. He might then be more understanding of the actions taken by past councils on behalf of the interests of the residents of Carmel — interests Mr. Eastwood has sworn to uphold.

A disturbing footnote

Dear Editor:

For those partisans who argue the merits or demerits of the government's treatment of ethnic Japanese-Americans following the outbreak of war in 1941, here is an historical event that may disturb some thinking.

Sunday afternoon, Dec. 7, 1941, two Japanese airplanes appeared over the Hawaiian island of Niihau. One crashed landed near Nonopoana village and the other flew on west, probably to ditch in the sea. Both were apparently lost.

The pilot of the crashed plane was unhurt. He and his plane were searched and papers and a map were taken from him. For a while he was treated civilly and allowed freedom of movement. The island people had no means of communication with the other islands except by primitive lantern semaphore and so knew nothing of the Pearl Harbor attack.

By Tuesday it was decided that the pilot should be taken into custody and he was placed under guard of two locals. Later these two, at their own request, were relieved by native Hawaiians. On Friday one of the former guards, apparently acting at the behest of the pilot, asked that he be given th papers and map taken from the pilot. He was refused. He then pleaded that it was a matter of life or death, that Japan made him ask and he offered to pay $200 for them. He was still refused and he then disappeared from the drama, although sometime later he was chased by the pilot and his former friend.

The pilot and the other local men were now observed acting in close concert. Armed, they took some of the Hawaiians prisoner and caused the others to flee. About midnight on Friday the pilot attempted to send a message from his plane's radio and for the first time the listening natives realized that something was seriously amiss. (On Dec. 9, Elmer Robinson had written a letter from Kauai advising that war had begun but this letter was never delivered.)

Saturday morning at about 10 o'clock Benny Kanahele, who by now had been captured by the pilot and his accomplice, made an unsuccessful grab for the pilot's pistol; then, Benny's wife tried the same thing and failed. In the enusing melee Benny was shot three times by the pilot; all were flesh wounds. Enraged, Benny grabbed the pilot and in the best Rambo fashion, flung him bodily against a stone wall and killed him. Realizing that he was now alone, the pilot's accomplice shot himself to death.

The two locals who joined with the pilot were Japanese-Americans. The reluctant one, who was later taken into custody, was an alien; the enthusiastic collaborator, who killed himself, was an American citizen. The man who was sent to investigate the incident was a Japanese-American army officer.

Here we have three Japanese-Americans who would seem to represent, in microcosm, most of the ethnic Japanese living in the U.S. at the outbreak of the war.

Harada, the enthusiastic supporter of the Japanese pilot, was an American citizen. Undoubtedly, he was the sort envisioned by Roosevelt when he signed the relocation order. Shintani, the other collaborator, albeit apparently a reluctant one, reflected a good part of the Japanese community in his feelings when he felt tugged in both directions. But in the end he opted for his adopted country and chose to stand by it.

Lt. Jick Mizuha, who officially investigated this event, was everything any other American was and perhaps more. It is of him and others like him that many Japanese-Americans think when they denounce Roosevelt's relocation order.

There are no simple answers here. There never were. There is equity on both sides, so why can't the matter be laid to rest once and for all? Everyone in those days served as he could, wherever, whenever, however. A payoff here of any sort is an egregious insult to all concerned.

What parking problem?

Dear Editor:

Congratulations to Mr. Eastwood, may the winds be always at his back.

When Mr. E announced his candidacy our dear friend Paulla started sending us the Pine Cone to keep us abreast of the goings-on. With most candidates the outcry was "parking."

Let us face the facts; Carmel does not have a parking problem — the tourists have the parking problem.

Now before you send the men in the white coats please permit me a brief digression.

For years my wife and I have visited Carmel three to five days at a spell and finally, last year, we decided to treat ourselves to a full year in residence — August '84 through September '85.

We found a pleasant home just beyond the pale (ZIP 93923), settled in and started to really explore Carmel. It took us all of two days to realize that the only people attempting to park in downtown were either fools or masochists.

You know that the health gurus tell us that walking is second only to jogging — and it sure is a lot easier to walk on the streets of Carmel than to jog.

So we set up several "trips." Park the car around Fourth, walked down to Fifth and over to the P.O., down to Sixth, right to Lincoln and enjoying the constantly changing windows along the way. Down to Ocean to pick up a few bucks at our bank then east to the library to see what was new and say hi to Barbara.

East again to chat with Eva at Burchells then on to Wishart's for some breakfast and dinner goodies. Cut through the park to Bruno's to pick up a few days meals and say hello to Bill and Jim. Back to the car and home again.

A most pleasant afternoon with exercise, good conversation and not the least bit hassled by traffic.

Another "outing" found us parking around Eighth. Perhaps luncheon at Adobe Inn, drop in to Piccadilly Park and the Secret Garden; we must have sent their wind bells to everyone we ever knew. Up to Ocean and gawk, in the windows 'til reaching Mr. Bruhn's — such displays. South to Nielsen's Market for some lunches and dinners (Merv and Mrs. Sutton have managed to gather some terrific people; still love that Mercedes, Merv?)

What I am trying to say, Carmel, is to relax and enjoy the wonderful place you live in and let the tourists fend for themselves.

Thank you for caring

Dear Editor:

Volunteers In Action joins organizations and individuals of the Monterey Peninsula in honoring the Salvation Army, particularly during "Salvation Army Week," May 18 through 24.

The Salvation Army Corps and Volunteers offers hope to the hungry and homeless, provides latch-key children with safe and supervised after-school care, keeps the food cupboard filled and ready to provide for those in need, and whatever request may be made, somehow or other, a way is found to fill it.

This is an excellent occasion to say, "Thank you for caring" to the dedicated corps and volunteers.

Voters manipulated

Dear Editor:

Pool Carmel! The innocent citizen voters did not know that they were being manipulated by Big-Time political power until the election was over. Too late the local media finally revealed the fact that the town was the target of Eastwood's political campaign managed by a team which has worked politically with President Reagan, George Deukmejian, Richard Nixon, etc.

The uninformed Carmel citizens surely did not intend to have their very distinguished small town invaded by L.A.-type managers.

We now learn that the mayor's friends, "volunteers" from (of all places) Las Vegas, Hollywood, Tahoe, Reno, Atlantic City, "all at no extra charge to the city," worked on the public address system at city hall. Thanks, but this is not hiring local people, as promised.

The new city operators must also recognize that their every decision regarding water, tourism, traffic, density, affect the whole peninsula; Carmel Valley, Big Sur, Highway 68, the four cities. All are interrelated and definitely in each other's zone of influence.

We will appreciate it if the local media keep us up to date on all future pertinent political actions. Now that the theatrical farce is tempered down somewhat, we will hope to forestall any more glitzy attacks. It would be wonderful if Mayor Eastwood would make a sincere effort to secure Carmel as a true Heritage City.

ARCHITECT'S RENDITION of the proposed Harrison Memorial Library annex is reproduced above. The council has delayed action on the proposed annex while it studies the possibility of joining in with the Pine Inn on a 96-space underground parking garage. That plan was originally developed in 1982 but killed by the council.

Between city, Pine Inn

Joint parking project could reap benefits

By MICHAEL GARDNER

A PROPOSED agreement with the Pine Inn would allow the city of Carmel to double its parking spaces while spending less money on the proposed downtown underground garage project, according to very preliminary figures.

The city currently is meeting with the new owners of Pine Inn to resurrect the proposal that was killed by the former council in September 1982.

Mayor Clint Eastwood had asked for the meeting with Pine Inn after General Manager Chris McKay approached the council at its May 6 session about reopening negotiations.

The results of those talks are expected to be discussed by the council at its June 3 meeting.

The plan called for Pine Inn and the city to jointly develop a 96-space two-story underground parking facility as part of the annex to Harrison Memorial Library on the northwest corner of Lincoln Street and Sixth Avenue. (Pine Inn owns the two lots directly south of the annex site.)

Under the proposal, the city and Pine Inn would pretty much split the costs of the project, although the city would be providing three lots while the Pine Inn has only two lots for the project.

The city would retain 47 spaces on the top level while Pine Inn would be allocated 49 spaces, the agreement stipulated. The 49-room Pine Inn now has only about 20 off-street parking spaces available.

In 1982 the city estimated construction costs at between $500,000 to $700,000. Hall, Goodhue, Haisley and Barker — the library annex architects — had nothing to do with the early projections, but did estimate that today the city-only proposed 20-space underground facility carries an estimated price tag of $685,000.

The architects have used a 14 percent inflator factor since 1983. More conservatively, one can assume a 20 percent increase in costs between 1982 and 1986.

As a ballpark figure, based on a 20 percent inflator and using the 1982 contract as a guide, Carmel would pay just $420,000 for 47 spaces compared to the current city-only project of 20 spaces for $685,000.

The bulk of the parking garage construction costs — no matter which facility is approved — is expected to come out of what is called the city "in-lieu" fee budget.

In-lieu fees are charges assessed to commercial property owners who cannot meet city parking requirements. The fee is about $20,000 per space.

•

THE CITY currently has a little more than $400,000 available in its in-lieu parking fee budget.

The council at its Sept. 7, 1982 meeting rejected the Pine Inn agreement by a 4-1 vote with only then-Mayor Charlotte Townsend supporting the plan.

Townsend had told the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook, "I understand the concerns of people, but what have we got there now? Two parking lots with chemical toilets...The city's interests are better served by going in together with the Pine Inn on this."

Townsend continued, "We have to be willing to take a risk and move ahead on this. Everybody is afraid to do anything or try anything new."

But her colleagues believed otherwise, each saying that there had been an overwhelmingly negative public response to the proposed Pine Inn agreement.

"The feeling was very strong and unanimous against the proposal," said Helen Arnold, who still serves on the council. Echoing her statements were ex-Councilmen Robert Stephenson and David Maradei, and the late Councilman Frank Lloyd.

Three and a half years later, new Mayor Eastwood says he is interested in pursuing the agreement, at least to the extent of talking to Pine Inn.

"The question I want answered is how it benefits the city," Eastwood said.

The possible benefit was the reason Eastwood gave for asking the council to delay action on the proposed Harrison Memorial Library annex. "I hated doing that," Eastwood admitted.

"We wanted the city council to know that we are interested and if they are interested then we should discuss it," explained Dan Russell, a spokesman for Pine Inn owners in Fresno.

"For us it is very preliminary...We see some possibility," Russell continued.

There are no definite plans, but Russell indicated that the 1982 proposed agreement would be a good starting point for the talks.

"We're highly interested in that plan that was presented," he said. "The key is if there is a possibility we really want to explore it. If the city is interested, we are too."

Library Director Margaret Pelikan said an expanded parking facility would have "absolutely no effect" on the annex.

"All we want is a library that works efficently and we can afford," Pelikan said.

•

THE MAY 6 meeting also included numerous housekeeping chores for the council as Mayor Eastwood appointed members to committees and outside agencies.

Appointments included: mayor pro-tem, Arnold; Association of Monterey Bay Area Governments, James Wright; Community Human Services Project, Bob Fischer.

The policy advisory committee for the water district, Wright; Holman Highway Task Force, Elinor Laiolo; council finance and budget, Eastwood; beach task force, Eastwood; Monterey Peninsula Refuse Disposal District, Arnold; and Monterey-Salinas Transit director, Arnold.

Sandy Skillicorn, who had resigned as city treasurer to support Eastwood's campaign, was renamed to that position. The mayor also appointed Jim Heisinger as the city's representative to the Carmel Youth Center board of directors.

New council to be introduced to Hatton Canyon Freeway

A PRESENTATION on "where we've been, what we're doing and where we're going" will be given by Caltrans to introduce the new Carmel City Council to the long controversial Hatton Canyon Freeway proposal.

The council will meet with Caltrans in a special public study session at 4 p.m. Tuesday, May 20 in the council chambers at city hall. No action is to be taken.

According to project engineer Ken Jones, the session is designed as a "show and tell" for the council.

It will be the first look at the Hatton Canyon Freeway proposal for Mayor Clint Eastwood and Councilmembers Elinor Laiolo and Robert Fischer, all of whom were elected April 8.

The session will focus on: a history of the project, alternatives to the freeway proposal, choices to make concerning existing Highway 1, environmental problems, and questions and answers, Jones indicated.

The proposed Hatton Canyon Freeway would run parallel to existing Highway 1 from Carpenter Street to Rio Road. There is still study of an interchange at Carmel Valley Road.

In 1986 dollars, the project is expected to cost between about $20 million, Jones said.

The draft environmental impact report for the proposed freeway is scheduled to be released in July with public hearings in Carmel this August, Jones explained.

Caltrans anticipates that construction could begin in early 1989, but Jones does not want to be held to that time line.

"We have a very optimistic schedule," he said.

The former city council had endorsed the proposed Hatton Canyon Freeway project basically because it believed that the new throughway would alleviate traffic avoiding Highway 1 congestion by shortcutting through Carmel.

Opponents of the freeway believe that easing traffic problems would just open the area to more development and more cars effectively eliminating any benefits. The Hatton Canyon Freeway is the key traffic congestion mitigator for the Odello (162 units), Rancho San Carlos (3,800 units) and Point Lobos Ranch (two, 120-room hotels) developments.

There also are those who believe the state should widen existing Highway 1 to four lanes rather than spend $20 million on a freeway.

No sooner said than done

TEN HOURS after Mayor Clint Eastwood and the council asked for a temporary parking lot on Dolores Street city crews were out there clearing the property. The council May 6 chose to open the city-owned property for parking while the fate of the senior citizen housing project is debated. The approximately 40-space lot will be made available for all-day parking. (Michael Gardner photo.)

New home found for Friends of Photography

campaign has been undertaken to fund the renovation and to create a program endowment. Slightly more than half the cost of renovation has been raised, Alinder added.

Virginia Adams, widow of photographer Ansel and honorary co-chairman of the project, was at first "skeptical, until she actually saw the space," Alinder said. Fort Mason was built for the U.S. Army in the early years of this century as a site for supply warehouses and embarkation piers. Today it houses more than 50 non-profit cultural, educational and environmental organizations.

•

'OUR FIRST CHOICE was to stay in Carmel," Alinder said of the relocation. "One possibility we were interested in was the proposed parking garage and library for the north end of Sunset Center. I thought that would be a good location for the Ansel Adams Center.

In March 1984 Ansel Adams told the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook, "It's all a matter of futurity. It's the intention of the board to stay right here in this area.

"I'd feel very bad if we left the area. It's just a matter of security for our future space. In our desire to stay here nothing would please us more than if the top floor of the (proposed Sunset Center) garage could be developed for galleries."

"The previous mayor (Charlotte Townsend) had no interest in that proposal. I think it was seen as too hot of a political football," Alinder stated. "We had a proposal on her desk for months and couldn't get any action out of her. An intermediary got things going, but we got a definite no-interest from the city.

"We looked at three or four building locations in Carmel, but basically Mrs. Townsend was not interested — the message was Carmel had enough culture. We then looked all over the peninsula."

A proposal to locate the Friends of Photography near Point Lobos, Alinder said, resulted in "the environmental difficulties of building there outweighing the advantages."

"We reviewed two or three potential sites in Monterey including one near the aquarium, a lot that is a proposed hotel site with a hotel moratorium — but the price was absolutely outrageous.

"One of our problems politically was to come after the aquarium, which a year ago enjoyed tremendous attendance without necessarily answering the problems of parking and traffic," he said. "Obviously any facility showing the photographs of Ansel Adams will enjoy tremendous popularity."

The executive director said the search for a new headquarters had continued for more than a year when trustees suggested "the search might be well-broadened."

"The only other logical place for the Ansel Adams Center was San Francisco — his birthplace and home for more than 60 years, and a major art center for the United States. We had tremendous cooperation from (San Francisco) Mayor Dianne Feinstein and Fifth District Congresswoman Sala Burton."

Support has also arrived from former presidents Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter, who will serve as honorary chairpersons for the campaign to raise project capital. President Ford displayed Ansel Adams' photographs in the Oval Office, and in 1980 President Carter awarded the photographer America's highest civilian honor, the Presidential Medal of Freedom. The citation praised Adams as "a visionary in his efforts to preserve this country's wild and scenic areas, both on film and on earth."

"A huge and wonderful change will come to our education program," Alinder stated. "We don't have any space for it at all right now. We've had to rent facilities all over the peninsula."

Alinder also voiced enthusiasm for the proposed publishing facilities that will occupy the Ansel Adams Center.

"We are among the biggest photographic book publishers in the world, in terms of both quality and numbers of books published," Alinder said. "Most photographic books run between 3,000 and 5,000 copies. Ours run to about 25,000 copies each. Having the publishing workshop will definitely impact our expansion of that area."

The auditorium, he added, will feature state-of-the-art projection equipment. The center's library will be open not to the public, but to scholars and professionals — photographers, students and curators from various fields.

"There are two dozen colleges and universities in the (San Francisco) Bay Area that teach creative photography courses," the executive director said. "This will be a tremendously enthusiastic audience."

Whether the Friends of Photography will maintain a Monterey Peninsula branch is "a question that has yet to be answered," Alinder observed.

"There are several possibilities. We may do one or more workshops here a year. Some say we should keep a satellite gallery going here. I guess we'll become tourists," Alinder quipped.

Of the space in Sunset Center now occupied by Friends of Photography, Center Director Richard Tyler said, "I was hoping they might consider keeping a gallery here. As you can see, if you look at our office here, we need to enlarge as well. We have felt the space pinch for some time — just take a look. The entire project or concept of what will happen to that space would belong to the (Carmel Community and) Cultural Commission."

Pony play opens Saturday in CV, Colt tryouts next

REPRESENTATIVES from three service clubs that have sponsored Pony baseball for about 14 years will toss out the ceremonial first pitches when the season opens Saturday, May 17 on the Carmel Valley diamond.

The Pony division of Carmel Youth Baseball features an expanded league this year, from four to five teams: the Kiwanis Tigers, Rotary Mets, Lions Lions, Paul's Pak A's and Nielsen Brothers Padres.

Team pictures will begin at 10 a.m. with opening day ceremonies slated a half hour later. Representatives from the Lions, Kiwanis and Rotary clubs will throw out the first pitch.

Pony division is for players ages 13-14.

In other Carmel Youth Baseball news, tryouts for the Colt division (ages 15-16) will be held at 11 a.m. Sunday, May 18 on the Carmel High School field.

School information meets on asbestos

TWO INFORMATIONAL sessions on asbestos in Carmel Unified School District facilities have been scheduled by officials.

The first session is at 7 p.m. May 15 at Captain Cooper School, followed by a 7 p.m. June 5 meeting at the middle school library.

Materials containing asbestos have been found in certain classrooms at Captain Cooper, the middle school and high school.

The asbestos poses no health hazard, but the district is readying plans to remove the materials.

The meetings are open to the public.

Board expected to name new trustee and CHS principal

THE CARMEL Unified School District Board of Education is expected to name a new trustee and principal for Carmel High School by the end of this month.

Trustees will interview prospective board members during its regular session at 7 p.m. May 20 and make the appointment in a special meeting at 5 p.m. May 21. Both meetings will be in the middle school library.

The new board member will replace President Doyle Clayton, who resigned in early April to pursue his administrative credential.

Five applications had been received as of May 12, according to Supt. Robert Infelise.

Trustees also will convene in a closed door session May 27 to interview a handful of finalists for the Carmel High School principalship.

If the board reaches an agreement, trustees will announce the new principal in a public meeting at 7 p.m. May 28 in the middle school library.

Current Principal Joe Feldeisen recently resigned to return to his vice-principal duties next fall.

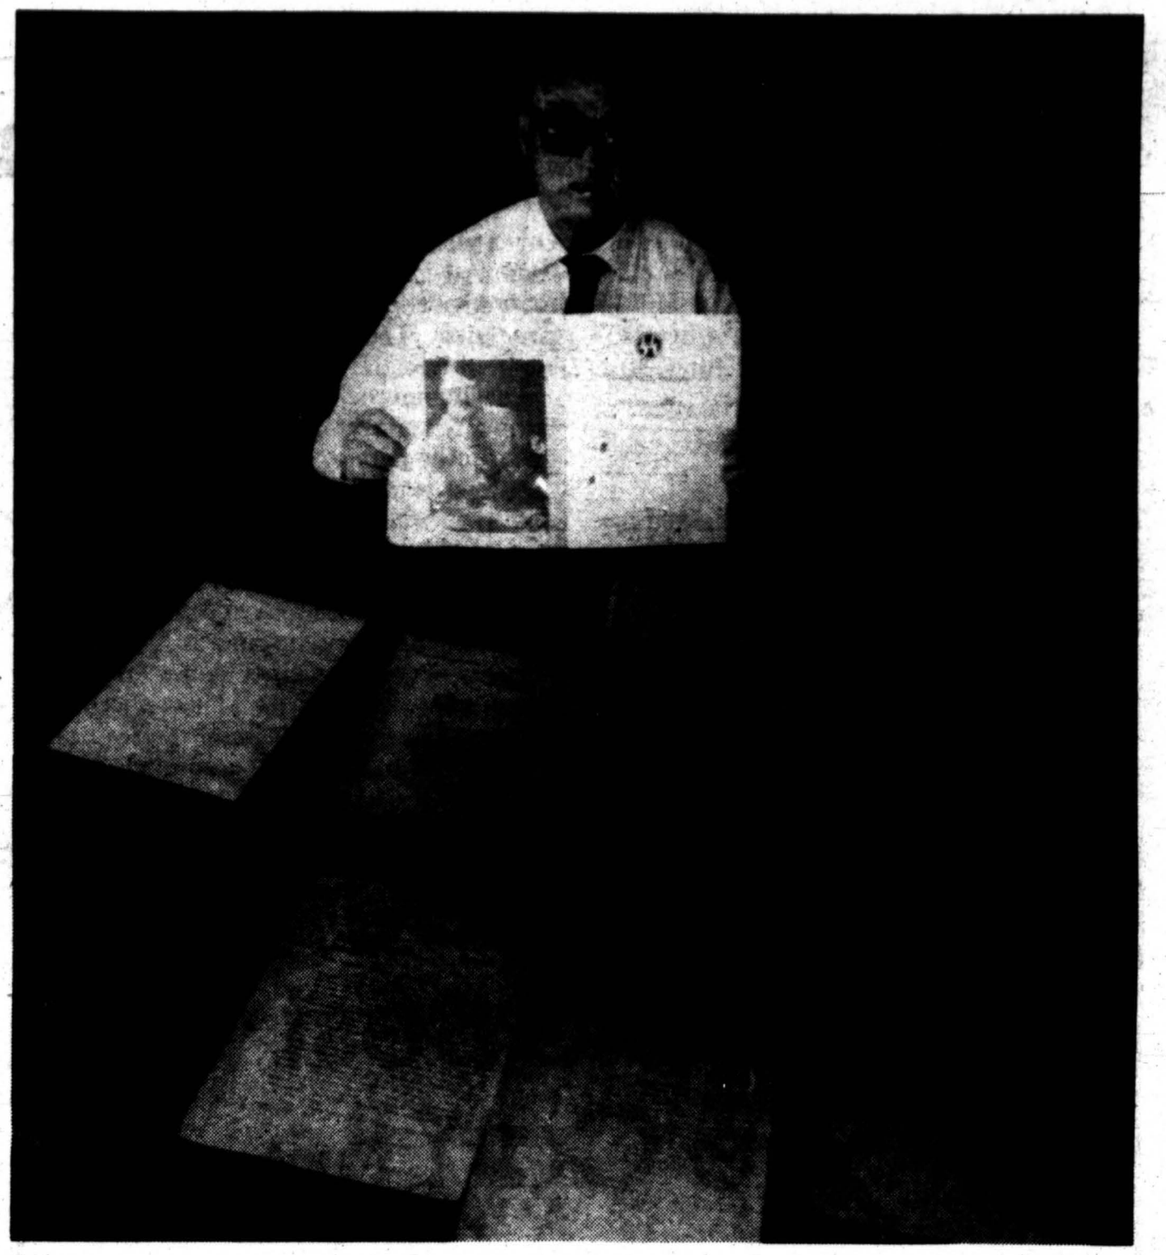
Race walkers in marathon

IN A race within a race, 48-year-old Piergiorgio Andreotti of Italy came in first at the Big Sur International Marathon held April 27.

World-class athlete Andreotti came in more than 19 minutes faster than second-place finisher Karl Krueger at 4 hours and 10 minutes flat. That may not sound fast for a world-class marathoner, but it's fast enough when your talking about walking the entire 26.2-mile route.

Andreotti is one of the world's premier race walker, an unusual style of walking-running that has a lot of local adherents as well as being an Olympic event. The marathon race walking division was organized and supported by the Monterey Peninsula Walk Walk Walk Club

Other local finishers (after Krueger), with their times, include: Mary Baribeau, 4:45:45; Diane Mendoza, 4:47:57; Ruth Daskaloff of Carmel, 5:25:48; Christine Maner, 5:35:44; Brierly Reybine, 5:40:11; Ronald Haralson, 5:53:41; Robert Nordhof of Carmel, 5:58:30; Janet Bradley, 6:00:50; Ruth Sorensen, 6:09:58; Sarah Sterling of Carmel, 6:23:57; Mary Scangarella, 6:33:00; Jacky Scangarella, 6:33:01; Greg Soderlund, 6:33:05; and Fritz Von Berg, 6:55:00.



Seeking a Sister City

TUVIAH FRIEDMAN, a world renowned Nazi hunter, was in Carmel early this week seeking support for his plan to have Carmel become a sister city to the Israeli town of Haifa. The seaport city is built on Mount Carmel, translated "The vineyard of God," Friedman said. Friedman also wants to present in Carmel a program this summer on 50 years of Jewish life. During his visit, Friedman met with Mayor Clint Eastwood and also spoke to a large group of Congregation Beth Israel members in Monterey, who were commemorating the country's independence. Friedman is one of the world's foremost Nazi hunters, having tracked down the notorious Adolf Eichmann, an SS Lt. Col. who carried out Adolf Hitler's "The Final Solution" horror that led to the murder of six million Jews. Eichmann was executed in 1962. Friedman, author of Long, Dark Nazi Years and an escapee of a Nazi concentration camp, said that if Josef Mengele is dead then the top Nazi now being hunted is Heinrich Muller, a former Gestapo general believed to be in the Soviet Union. To simplify, clarify plan

New general plan committee has tough task

CHAIRMAN Robert Evans opened the first meeting of the newly-formed General Plan Advisory Committee by saying that their task is to "simplify, clarify and offer a better balance of fairness and common sense where needed."

Evans and the committee soon learned that it's easier said than done, especially when discussing second kitchens.

The committee was organized by Mayor Clint Eastwood to offer an "ongoing critique" of the general plan. It is scheduled to report to the council in July. Members include Evans, Jean Grace, Olaf Dahlstrand, Ed Hicks and Alan Williams. Williams and Grace were members of the original General Plan Advisory Committee which met for more than two years advising the council on a new plan. The existing general plan was adopted Dec. 31, 1983.

The committee will next meet at 3:30 p.m. Friday, May 16 at city hall. The sessions are open to the public.

At that session, committee members are to report on where they believe problem areas exist within the general plan. Then each committee member will proceed with a review of individual elements, such as land use, traffic and circulation, and housing.

In his opening remarks at the Friday session, Evans indicated that "laws should not run counter to common sense" and indicated that the main task of the committee is to review the general plan and make recommendations to the council for changes if necessary.

Other committee members agreed. Hicks said, "I'm all for simplification. Whatever we can do toward that, I'm happy." And Williams added, "I would like to see it become, in computer terms, more 'user-friendly'."

The only specific discussed by the committee during the first session was second kitchens, the long-controversial issue.

Second kitchens are units rented by a property owner that includes a stove, refrigerator and sink. Currently illegal, there are about 300 such units rented in Carmel, according to city officials.

The issue is a complex one. Second kitchens are seen as a tool to provide low-cost rental housing in notoriously-expensive Carmel.

But there are those who fear legalization will proliferate parking problems, lead to the creation of duplexes and actually reward those who have flouted the law in the past.

•

ANOTHER STICKY issue is rent control.

The new council disdains rent controls, but without such provisions it is doubtful the second kitchens will provide the service intended: low-cost housing.

Grace started the discussion by pointing out that the city does not enforce some of its policies, specifically naming second kitchens.

"I think it's very poor practice for a city or anyone else to have a law that it doesn't enforce," she said."

"There are dozens of laws just like that — like the pooper scooper," said Evans, referring to the practically non-enforceable ordinance requiring pet owners to clean up after their animals.

"It has to be faced," Grace continued. "There is a law on the books that nobody wants to face."

Evans, using Eastwood's "Gestapo" terminology for a proposed second kitchen ordinance, said, "The Gestapo ordinance was taken right out of the general plan... We need to ease up on some of the army boot provisions."

Grace said "rather than ignore it, you write the law clearly."

"The real question is what do we do? Do we wink at it or face it?," Dahlstrand said.

Williams said the state requires cities to provide low-cost housing. "We've got to provide more, but we're already a sardine can."

In any case, it will be Hicks who will develop some recommendations: he was assigned the housing element. Other assignments are: land use, Dahlstrand and Williams; parking and circulation, Williams; significant buildings, Evans; and open space and scenic conservation, Grace.

The committee also set 3:30 p.m. Fridays as its regular meeting time and date.

Loss of parking spaces key issue in walkway EIR

THE LOSS of 77 parking spaces along Scenic Road is the key issue as the city begins to review the environmental impact report for the Carmel Beach walkway plan.

The planning commission will conduct a public hearing on the environmental impact report (EIR) at 4 p.m. Wednesday, May 21 at city hall.

The commission is to choose whether it wants to recommend that the council certify the EIR as adequately addressing the impacts of the project.

If commissioners agree, then the EIR would be presented to the city council, probably at its June 3 session.

Although the EIR covers the entire Carmel Beach rehabilitation project — that includes the landscaping as well — the focal point is the walkway from Eighth Avenue to the south city limits on the west side of Scenic Road.

But to make room for the walkway, which is between five and 10-feet wide, the design eliminates 77 parking spaces on Scenic Road.

Under the proposed plan there would be just 69 parking spaces compared to the current 146.

"Certainly the whole parking situation is a critical issue," said staff planner Brian Roseth.

During inclement weather and weekdays "there are quite a few vacant spaces," he said.

"It's very much dependent on the time of day and the weather, which is pretty much common sense," Roseth said.

Some of the methods to provide additional parking, Roseth said, include:

• Marking stalls on San Antonio Street, which receives the overflow of parkers unable to find a space. "You generally tend to end up with more parking spaces when you mark them," he said.

• Narrowing the path to allow for more spaces. However, pushing the path closer to the beach means the city will be required to provide more guardrails for safety. Fence is a dirty word among many of those involved in the project.

• Reduce the four-foot space between existing parking spaces. That would allow more room for cars, but also less view for drivers and Scenic Road residents. The four-foot space between parked cars was decided "so you don't have a solid wall of cars," Roseth said.

• Reduce the landscaping and design several diagonal spaces.

JOHN FREITAS of San Jose has been named executive director of the Carmel Foundation replacing Betty Plank, who had served for 12 years.

Carmel Foundation picks San Jose man as director

AFTER A dozen years of leadership by Betty Plank, the Carmel Foundation has a new executive director.

John Freitas of San Jose has been named to replace the retiring Plank effective May 15, Carmel Foundation Board of Directors President Richard Nimmons announced this week.

The 42-year-old Freitas was selected from 58 candidates following a three-month statewide search, Nimmons said.

For the past seven years Freitas has served as executive director of Homemaker Services Inc. of San Jose, an organization administering to the needs of senior citizens in that city. He had also served with Homemaker Services Inc. as its director of operations and as department supervisor.

As executive director of the Carmel Foundation, Freitas will oversee the the operation of its two housing complexes, a residential care facility, meals for seniors program, adult education offerings and social work.

Freitas has a master's degree in sociology from San Jose State and for two years did postgraduate studies and taught sociology at the University of Hawaii. He is married and the father of two children.

Directors will honor Plank during a reception from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. Sunday, June 1 at the foundation.

Heading for the tropics

MEMBERS OF the junior class at Carmel High School (shown above are student council members Paul Wagstaff, Bart Landsman, Janice Aldrich, Jackie Gardner, and Maile Smith) will host a dinner-dance prom with the theme, "An Evening in the Tropics," from 7:30 p.m. to midnight, Saturday, May 17 at the Hyatt Regency Monterey. Tickets, at $55 per couple, are going fast. They include hors d'oeuvres, dinner and drinks for two, and entertainment provided by local rock group Lovers and Strangers. This is the first year Carmel has hosted a dinner-dance prom. Helping out for the prom were McKay's Printing, PIP Printers, The Back Pocket, Jim Yates, Dana Durand, Dottie Little, and Lou Langley. Tickets are available at ASB office at the school.

BEHIND THE LINES

BY MICHAEL GARDNER

It's not "Mr. Eastwood goes to Carmel"

ONE OF the numerous campaign jokes had Clint Eastwood's next movie being modeled after the famous Jimmy Stewart vehicle Mr. Smith Goes to Washington, a classic about common folk up against the bureaucracy.

TOURISTS WITH enough patience were able to enter city hall during the May 6 council meeting and during a break were able to snap a few photographs of Mayor Clint Eastwood during his first-ever council meeting. (Michael Gardner photo.)

Sorry prognosticators, but Mayor Clint has other plans in mind, namely a love story with Marsha Mason. Remember her? She was nominated for an Oscar for her role opposite Richard Dreyfuss in The Goodbye Girl.

Outside city hall, Clint didn't volunteer much info about the new movie, but answered some basic questions so the local gossip column can have something new to lead off with this week.

The movie for now is called Heartbreak Ridge — but don't get any ideas about a Sgt. York-type character from the title, Clint says.

"It's a character study of a sergeant who's about to go on mandatory retirement," Clint says. The sergeant, "Highway" is his name, also faces wife troubles, Mason's role.

"It's a love story," explains Clint, who also will produce and direct the film. The screenplay for Heartbreak Ridge is authored by an unknown. Clint sounds out his name, "Jim Karibotso", but predicting the follow-up question, Clint adds: "Don't ask me how to spell it." (That quote is thrown in so when this Jim guy calls about his misspelling I won't get the blame.)

Clint is talking to the generals over at Ft. Ord, hoping to use the army base for location shooting, scheduled to begin sometime this summer. But remember Clint, no fatigues in city hall!

Filming nearby no doubt will soothe Clint critics who fear his career will keep him from his $200-per-month duties as mayor. "I don't intend to miss any," Clint says about the council meetings. "That's why I'm looking at locations nearby."

Oh by the way, yes, Clint did offer me a supporting role after seeing my tanning salon commercial. Unfortunately, I had to turn it down because of a potential conflict of interest.

THIS IS YOUR LIFE, CARMEL

"Clint's Carmel" is the working headline for a Life magazine spread due out in July that will somehow revolve around small towns and the Statue of Liberty.

Camera 5 photographer Ken Regan was in town early this week shooting scenics and the mayor. Of course, the ladies see those two as synonymous. In the council chambers Regan was shooting Clint and Councilmembers Elinor Laiolo and Bob Fischer.

Now don't jump to conclusions. It's my understanding that holdovers Helen Arnold and James Wright were invited but couldn't make it because of other commitments.

Anyway, Regan said four or five pages will be devoted to Carmel.

YOU'D THINK IT WAS "THE BOSS"

Judging from the first day's turnout, Clint could really make money for the Carmel Youth Center if only it were legal to sell tickets to council meetings. Unhappy are the scalpers too.

They lined up early, some coming as soon as 2:30 p.m. for the 4 o'clock May 6 council meeting, Clint's first as mayor. By the first gavel, city hall was overflowing, the line in front to get in stretched to the street and gawkers were ten deep on the sidewalk.

Media out in full force again, about two dozen of them watched the proceedings on a postage stamp-size monitor out in the parking lot. If you don't feed 'em, they'll go away.

But, all went smooth thanks to plans hatched early on and headed by Sandy Farrell.

Basically, the plan was for nine media to be allowed in and 16 seats roped off for those wishing to speak on a particular agenda item. When the item was completed, those people were asked to leave so the next wave could come in. Other chairs in the 55-seat chambers were on a first-come, first-serve basis, so some of those tourists with the patience got in and actually were able to take photos during a 6 o'clock and 10 o'clock break.

"The plans were at Clint's request," Sandy said. "We want to keep it local. We really — and when I say we I mean he — we really didn't want the council meeting to be a media event."

The media, again, proved cooperative, Sandy said. "As long as we provided the press pool they were happy. My understanding is that most of them will not be back again until it's time for a six-month update."

That makes Clint and the city happy. "The thing we really want to address is that the mayor is most interested in the council meeting being for the Carmel residents," Sandy stressed.

Sandy explained that the city will continue to cordon off 16 seats for speakers until attendance numbers dwindle. "We want to encourage people to speak at council meetings," she said.

Asked to estimate the crowd, Sandy answered, "I was so nervous I never even stopped to count."

Nothing to be nervous about, Sandy, you did a great job.

RAMBLING MEETING NOTES

Some general thoughts thumbing through the May 6 agenda, which by the way had the most (nearly 50) items in the city's history.

First off, a blunder. Last week I reported Devendorf Park bathrooms were approved unanimously. And I was the one who stood up and asked for a roll call vote after a confusing voice tally! For the record, Wright and Arnold voted no in one of the few instances of new-old 3-2 block voting.

More positively, Clint will save the city about $1,700 by donating Carmel stone from his Valley quarry to use in the restroom design. The stone is also nicer with better colors and lasts longer, architect MacKenzie Patterson says.

Ask Elinor why she abstained on the vote to make Helen mayor pro-tem and you'll get an, "I'll abstain from answering" answer. Talk to husband Barney and you'll get the same response. No secret that Barney and Helen butted heads frequently when he was mayor.

On dropping the Odello suit, we caught up with Fifth District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman, who insists the ranch development will be included in the Carmel Valley Master Plan as per Judge Richard Silver's orders.

Odello family matriarch Bruna Odello responds to Strasser Kauffman, "I think she had best look at her constituency and the people in Mission Fields."

"She too is one of five," Bruna continued. "I'm sure if she would poll her constituency she would change her opinion."

When Clint made his appointments to planning commission, that was Bruce Roberts outside, unable to get in. Roberts is one of two new commissioners. Another Robert, this one ex-Councilman Stephenson, also shivered outside. "I'm just one of the unwashed public now," he said.

CLINT FOR PRESIDENT IN 1988?

Not to worry: the official Republican presidential preference survey for 1988 now being taken does not have Clint's name listed on the ballot.

Pre-printed Republican names on the survey include Paul Laxalt, Donald Rumsfield, Lew Lehrman, Howard Baker, Pat Robertson, Jeane Kirkpatrick, George Bush, Pete du Pont, Robert Dole, Elizabeth Dole, Jack Kemp and Alexander Haig.

However, there is a write-in spot, just in case anyone wants to pen in Clint's name.

The survey names top Democratic contenders as being Mario Cuomo, Gary Hart and Jesse Jackson.

SAVING BIG SUR?

Scanning through a Sunday Sacramento Bee I happened upon a fascinating story about the Tahoe National Forest and the timbering proposed there.

The feds, under the 1976 National Forest Management Act, have put together a plan to clear cut a total of 433,075 acres, or more than half of the Tahoe. (Replanting supposedly is in the plan.)

Anyway, the point is with this kind of "protection" from the feds, who needs to worry?

No doubt Big Sur residents will. They are battling Sen. Pete Wilson's proposed bill to federalize Big Sur.

Toxic disposal day set for June 14

In keeping with the Monterey Peninsula's long history of environmental awareness, the Monterey Peninsula Garbage and Refuse Disposal District (MPG&RDD) will sponsor a free Household Toxic Disposal Day.

Co-sponsors are Monterey County, local garbage companies and sanitary districts. The event is set for Saturday, June 14, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the transfer station, 840 Tioga Ave., Sand City.

David Myers, garbage district manager, says the project's two goals are to educate everyone about the dangers of household toxic materials, and to discourage people from putting such items into public landfills, sewer systems or the ground near their homes.

What will be accepted on June 14 are such items as household cleaners, abrasive scouring powders, aerosol cans, ammonia- and chlorine-based cleaners, drain cleaners, automotive materials like antifreeze, gasoline and brake fluids; pesticides, herbicides, chemical fertilizers, solvents, thinners, photographic chemicals and pool acids.

Myers notes that business operators who generate small amounts of toxic waste will not be permitted to participate in the event. "We're working on a plan to help those people, but we're just not prepared to handle that material as part of this collection day," he explains.

Nor will the crew accept latex paints or motor oils, says Myers. He suggests that householders use up their paint or donate it to someone else. If that's not possible, people can remove the lids from the paint cans, set the material outside in a well-ventilated area, and allow it to dry out thoroughly. The cans of hardened residue can then be thrown in the trash.

Residents can recycle moderate quantities of used oil, at no charge, at these Monterey Peninsula locations: Carmel Rancho Union, 544 Carmel Rancho Blvd., Carmel; Mid-Valley Mobil, Mid-Valley Shopping Center, Carmel Valley; Chevron U.S.A., 3645 Rio Rd., Carmel.

For more information contact Myers at 384-5313.

Fourth Graders
Humorous, smart
Giggling and working
Frustrating sometimes, fun others
Educated

By Nicole Rowan

By Rosemary Montgomery

Nicole's poem does a good job of describing fourth-graders. The boys might not agree that "giggling" describes them, but everything else seems accurate.

Fourth-grade teachers, each in their own way, must take advantage of the energy, humor and intelligence of their students and channel all of that talent in positive directions. Our fourth-grade teachers, Sharron Douglas, Gar Lothe and Jack McCormack do just that.

Sharron has a unique situation this year teaching a fourth-fifth combination class. Her teaching style is especially suited for this kind of class. She uses an individualized approach and gives students responsibility for their own learning. Her students come together as a whole group, work in small groups and, then, as individuals throughout the day. Sharron skillfully balances two grade levels and curriculum.

Sharron's students have been working on original scripts and are ready to perform before the video camera. They have used their creative talents and honed their technical skills. The best part is the performance and the audience. Mrs. Douglas has a special awareness of fourth-graders' needs. She just seems to know the right things to say and the right thing to do.

Gar Lothe does wonderful things with books. His personal classroom library is a place to delight all who love reading and to inspire those who don't, but will before the year is over. Parents are involved, too. They work in the classroom helping with book reviews, listening to children read and recording answers to comprehension questions.

Gar even uses books as rewards. An invitation to his Book Awards is an invitation to a wonderful experience. For the winners, it's better than wonderful. When Mr. Lothe calls your name, says a lot of nice things about you and presents you with one of his favorite books, you feel very special. Gar believes in giving recognition for a job well done.

If you have not had a chance to see the spectacular papier mache birds created by Jack McCormack's fourth-graders, you have really missed something. Bright colors, elegant plumes, glittering beads and unique shapes make these birds one-of-a-kind collector's items. It's a project that allows fourth-grade imaginations to bloom.

Creative birds are one thing, creative math facts are another. Jack uses the "click" game to make the memorization of math facts fun. Students compete against themselves and the clicker, gaining speed and accuracy with each contest. Mr. McCormack has a gift for turning the ordinary into something extraordinary.

Fourth-grade is a year of creativity and stretching. Basic skills are fairly well set and have become the tools for learning. Sharron, Gar and Jack provide their students with the opportunities to use those tools in a variety of ways.

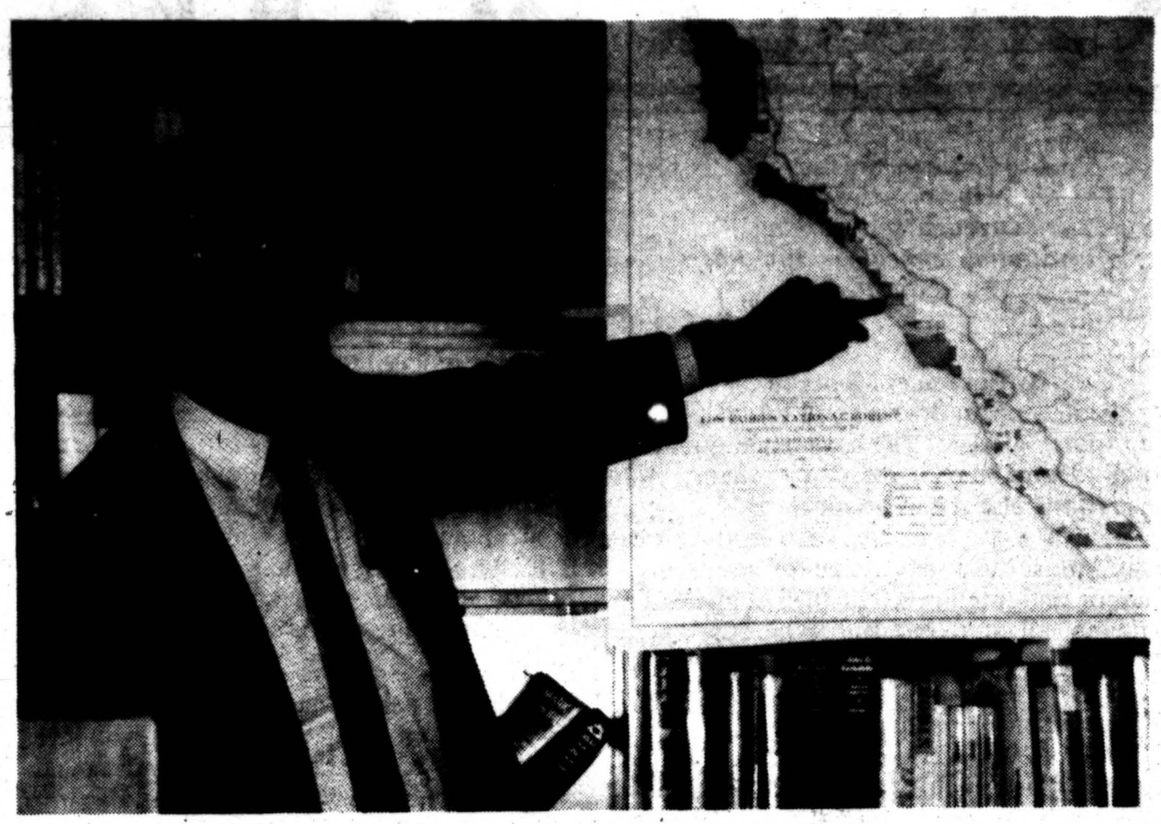
Wilson aide finds going tough on Big Sur bill



WILL SHAW was one of the panelists at an informational meeting to discuss Sen. Pete Wilson's proposed plan to federalize Big Sur. (Michael Gardner photo.)

By MICHAEL GARDNER

JIM BURROUGHS, principal author of Sen. Pete Wilson's much-maligned measure to federalize Big Sur, returned to the Monterey Peninsula last week only to find opposition stronger than ever.

Burroughs was one of five panelists to speak on Wilson's measure during a May 7 meeting of the Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club.

A full house — most of whom are opponents of the measure — packed the Carmel High School library to hear Burroughs, Anne Notthoff, executive director of the National Resource Defense Council; Karin Strasser Kauffman, Fifth District supervisor; Patricia Smith Ramsey, Carmel Highlands attorney; and Will Shaw, member of the Big Sur Land Trust.

The bill introduced in early March has been condemned throughout Big Sur, denounced by Strasser Kauffman and was the subject of a resolution in opposition adopted by the Carmel City Council.

Most of the opposition stems from the bill giving enormous controls to the Secretary of Agriculture, including the power to condemn private land and change boundaries. They also fear the James Watt syndrome, where the president appoints a secretary who may not have the same environmentally-sensitive philosophy as espoused by Big Sur residents and their land use plan (LUP).

Wilson has argued that the measure only gives those powers to the Secretary of Agriculture if the LUP is "significantly weakened." The measure is vague on who determines the definition of "significantly weakened."

Wilson's bill also would establish a fund-raising organization to help obtain monies for acquisition of open space. Another appointed agency would advise the Secretary of Agriculture on Big Sur issues.

There is sentiment — mostly expressed by Strasser Kauffman — that if Wilson really is interested in preserving Big Sur that there is a way to meet his goals and keep federal intervention at a minimum.

First, Wilson should drop his bill and introduce financing legislation that would help the county acquire permanent open space.

Secondly, Wilson should push through a measure that would require the U.S. Forest Service to abide by all of the provisions in the Big Sur LUP. There are fears that federalization will lead to even more visitors and concessions in Big Sur much like now-overcrowded Yosemite.

•

IT WAS obvious from the very beginning that Burroughs would not be addressing a friendly meeting of the Young Republicans. Instead, the crowd was mostly hostile, although generally well-behaved.

The Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club ran into trouble even before the meeting started when it refused to allow a representative from the Friends of the Big Sur Coast participate on the panel.

Further boos were forthcoming when the timekeeper refused to allow Strasser Kauffman more than her allotted 10 minutes, even though she had set aside some of her time so that Monterey County Planning Director Robert Slimmon could comment on some technical points in the bill.

That problem was corrected when later panelists gave their time to Strasser Kauffman when they were supposed to be having a roundtable discussion.

During his 20-minute talk, Burroughs mostly defended Wilson's bill but provided little new information for residents concerned about vagueness in the measure.

Burroughs tried to appease the audience by saying the LUP is the "cornerstone" of the senator's legislation and that local controls still will dictate planning policies for Big Sur.

The bill would prohibit "new mining" on federal lands, requires a survey to verify the Granite Rock mining claims before expanded work begins; prohibits logging on federal lands in the viewshed and bans offshore oil drilling, Burroughs said.

Burroughs claims that purchase of private lands will be on a "willing seller" basis but after questioning later did say that the Secretary of Agriculture would have condemnation powers as the bill is presently worded.

Ramsey, in a sharply-worded prepared statement, read a long list of opponents to the bill.

She claimed that "no amendments will answer their concerns."

Ramsey also ran through a long list of regions that have been federalized, noting that in each instance visitor numbers skyrocketed.

Currently the map indicates that the federalization boundaries are the same as those in the LUP, but the Secretary of Agriculture has the authority to change the borders.

Carmel Highlands and the city could be included in the boundaries "by a stroke of the pen," Ramsey warned.

"Big Sur's fight to remain free is also our fight...There is no threat except federalization," she believes.

•

STRASSER KAUFFMAN said at first she had "reservations" about attending because the Friends of the Big Sur Coast were not allowed to participate.

JIM BURROUGHS, aide to Sen. Pete Wilson and principal author of proposed legislation to federalize Big Sur, was kept on the defensive most of the night by Friends of the Big Sur Coast, which packed an information meeting sponsored by the Sierra Club. (Michael Gardner photo.)

"We are all environmentalists by virtue of our concern...No one has a monopoly on environmental concerns when it comes to the Big Sur coast," she said.

Pointing out discrepancies between what is said and what is written in the bill, Strasser Kauffman said, "Mr. Burroughs tells us one thing and some of those things sound wonderful to me, but I have read the bill."

Further attacking Wilson's measure, Strasser Kauffman said the bill is "too seriously flawed to be amendable," called it "sloppy planning" and would mean "a total loss of local control."

Just as Strasser Kauffman tried to "move into a more positive vein" Ventana Chapter President Dick Dalsemer said her time was up and she would have to sit down amidst boos from the audience.

Later, when the panelists were due for a roundtable discussion Strasser Kauffman was given their time.

It was then the supervisor argued that Wilson could best serve the community by introducing separate legislation that would:

- Provide funding to acquire open space.
- Expand the wilderness area.
- Require the Forest Service to adhere to LUP policies.
- Restrict mining and timbering.

Citing the newness and extensiveness of the LUP, Strasser Kauffman said, "I can't see where a quick-fix is required when nothing is broken."

Future of Big Sur marathon in doubt

DESPITE ITS overwhelming success this may have been the first and last Big Sur International Marathon.

Caltrans will conduct two public hearings next week as officials try to determine whether to allow Highway 1 to be closed again in 1987 for a second marathon.

The public hearings are scheduled for 7 p.m. Wednesday, May 21 at the Carmel High School library and for 7 p.m. Thursday, May 22 in the Big Sur Grange Hall.

Organizers of the race must receive permission from Caltrans to use Highway 1.

Most of the public opposition to the marathon is expected to come from Big Sur residents and merchants, who lost business and easy access to town when Highway 1 was closed for much of the day Sunday, April 27 for the race.

Bob Bussinger, president of the Big Sur Chamber of Commerce, said "100 percent" of the 30 to 35 people he has talked to are opposed to continuing the marathon.

The general consensus is that business lost between $50,000 and $60,000 because of the race, said Bussinger, who is the general manager and vice president of Ventana Inn.

Bussinger explained that merchants also were concerned because signs announcing the car caravan system to and from Big Sur went up as early as Friday and some didn't come down until the Monday after the race. That probably confused some visitors and caused a drop in patronage, he said.

Ventana Inn experienced "a significant loss" in business on race day, he said.

"Maybe most important is residents are adamantly opposed to putting restrictions on them without benefits," Bussinger added.

Tom Pollock, Caltrans district director based in San Luis Obispo, said that he will wait until after the public hearings before making a recommendation to the state office in Sacramento.

As far as the 1986 race was concerned, Pollock said, "overall it went better than expected."

Race Director Bill Burleigh, a Monterey Municipal Court Judge, has met with Carmel Highlands residents and had plans to attend an annual meeting there last night.

Burleigh said of the Big Sur residents he has talked to "some are supportive, some are indifferent and some are against...I have not heard any negatives at all from Carmel."

Overall, Burleigh said, "I think everyone conceded it was an enormous success, even our detractors."

The committee will meet tonight (May 15) to talk about "how much money we have left over and who it goes to."

Initially believing the marathon would lose money its first outing, the committee found a net profit of between $8,000 to $10,000, mostly thanks to big concession sales of about $16,000, Burleigh said.

Early on in the planning stages, the committee indicated that it would donate any of its profits to charity.

Slide removal still progresses

Slide removal work continues at Redwood Gulch where Highway 1 remains closed to all traffic between Ragged Point in northern San Luis Obispo County and the community of Gorda in southern Monterey County, according to Caltrans spokesperson Eddie Devens.

The worksite of the slide removal is now down to about 150 feet above the existing roadway.

While work is progression well, Caltrans is still anticipating an opening date for public traffic in mid-June. A separate paving contract is being prepared that will provide paving at about 10 locations between Big Sur and Redwood Gulch. The paving contract will be coordinated with the slide removal work.

RON PARRAVANO of Carmel Valley crosses the finish line at the Big Sur International Marathon and is greeted by its director, Bill Burleigh. Caltrans has scheduled two hearings for next week to receive public reaction before deciding on whether to allow the marathon to continue next year. (Michael Gardner photo.)

Life in miniature

GWS GALLERIES at Carmel Rancho Center opened its First Annual Miniatures Show last week, one that may have been small on size but huge on variety, quality and talent.

Represented were 228 pieces of artwork by 82 artists, three of them local products: Jack Lestrade, William F. Stone, and Jim Pilatos. Works included landscapes, seascapes, portraits, nudes, wildlife, and surrealism in oils, acrylics, watercolors, bronze, even scratchboard. And speaking of scratchboard, the one piece that appeared to attract the most attention was Alderson Magee's magnificent "Mute Swan." One of our favorites was James Christensen's "Old Man With Too Much on His Mind," which sounds slightly familiar.

The special preview held Thursday attracted a lot of local folk, with a great spread of food and libations to spare. An opening reception was held Saturday, with a sale by drawing held later that evening at 7. The show continues through May 25.

LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS ANNUAL MEETING

The Annual Meeting of the League of Women Voters of the Monterey Peninsula will be held at 11:30 a.m. Thursday, May 15 at the First Presbyterian Church in Monterey. Social hour is $4, reservations necessary, but the meeting following it at 12:45 is free, no reservations necessary.

Items on the agenda include next year's program, budget and board. Entertainment will be provided by the Monterey League Light Opera Company.

For reservations contact Kathy Leach at 375-1812.

VALLEY GARDENERS' FLOWER SHOW

The Carmel Valley Garden Association will host a Flower Show Saturday and Sunday, May 17 and 18 at Tularcitos School, Ford Road in Carmel Valley Village.

Hours are 1-5 p.m. May 17, and 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. May 18. The show is open to the public and is free.

This will be the 24th flower show for the association, which is in its 28th year. For more information contact Jay Sharp at 659-4985.

MAKES UCLA DEAN'S LIST

Wendy Lorraine Wagstaff was named to the Dean's List at UCLA this past quarter with a straight-A 4.0 grade point average. Wagstaff is a senior majoring in theater arts and will graduate in June. She graduated from Carmel High School in 1982 and is the daughter of Reid and Susan Wagstaff of Carmel.

JUNE BALLOT PROPOSITIONS AT MEN'S BREAKFAST

The Men's Booster Club breakfast, sponsored by the Carmel Republican Women's Club, will be held at 7:30 a.m. Monday, May 19 at the Carmel Mission Inn, Rio Road and Highway 1 at the Mouth of the Valley.

The program will feature individual presentations on several June ballot measures. For additional information or to make reservations contact Mrs. George Campion.

JOAN FONTAINE IN SPOTLIGHT

Advance tickets are going on sale for a benefit fund-raiser for the Monterey Film Festival featuring Joan Fontaine slated for Saturday, May 24 at the Steinbeck Forum at the Monterey Conference Center.

The evening is themed "The Golden Days of Hollywood' and will include Fontaine's rememberances of the "good old days" of film making and film stars. A reception hosted by The Monterey Vineyard will start at 7 p.m. with show to follow at 8.

Tickets are available at Centerstage Ticketing in Monterey, Bookworks, Dream Theatre, and the Monterey Film Festival office, 467 Alvarado St., Monterey. For information call 649-8887.

WILDFLOWERS AT CARMEL WOMAN'S CLUB MEETING

The Monday, May 19 meeting of the Carmel Woman's Club will feature a program on the wildflowers of Point Lobos by Sister Anna Voss. The presentation will include slides depicting the color and beauty the flowers display.

Sister Anna is an authority on the flowers and birds of our region, as well as being a botanist and biologist. She has prepared a photographic text which is now used at Point Lobos. She is also a native of our coast; her family owned what is now known as Ano Nuevo Park.

The 2 p.m. meeting will be followed by tea. For more information contact Mary E. White.

NO SEX PLEASE, WE'RE BRITISH

The English farce, No Sex Please, We're British, will be presented in a dress rehearsal performance Thursday, May 22 at the Carmel Studio Theatre when the Carmel Republication Women's Club holds its annual fund raiser. The play was performed on the London stage for eight years.

Dinner will be served promptly at 7 p.m. followed by an 8:30 curtain.

Tables of four and six will be available on a first-come first-served basis in the order reservations are received. Members and guests are invited to attend.

Please call Mrs. Lawson Little, Jr. or Mrs. Ralph Castagna for further information. Reservation deadline is Tuesday, May 20.

CHAMBER SPONSORS TOURISM WEEK LUNCHEON

The travel and tourism industry accounts for $224 billion annually in the nation's economy. Locally, it means $600 million and 16,000 jobs annually for the peninsula.

"Tourism Works for America" is the theme for National Tourism Week, May 18-24, and a Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce sponsored luncheon Tuesday, May 20 will expand on the visitor industry benefits within local communities.

Lynn Cook, executive director of the Honolulu Visitor Industry Education Council, is the keynote speaker and will show a new film, Tourism: What's In It For Me?

Also speaking will be a representative from the California Travel Industry Association (CALTIA) who will give an update on "The Californias," the state's current campaign to generate tourism.

LOOKING FOR CHS ALUMS

A Carmel High School reunion for the classes of 1944, 1945, 1946 and 1947 will be held Saturday, May 24 at the Mission Ranch in Carmel.

The class of 1946 is hosting the event. Steering Committee members from this class include Clayton Neill, Jr., George McElroy, Barbara Timmins-Livingston, Sylvia Thorne-Fraley, Beva Farmer, Janet Sassoon, Clive and Kate Rayne, Marty Irwin, Micky Appleton and Carol Thompson.

Coordinating the reunion for the class of 1944 are Walter Warren and Jim Greenan; 1945, Jim Heisinger and 1947 Mary McElroy Williams and Bob Morriseau.

Anyone with information about members of these classes please contact Barbara Timmins-Livingston at 659-4555 or Sylvia Thorne-Fraley at 375-5282 so that the committee can contact as many alumni as possible.

SPRING TEA AT HARRISON LIBRARY

The annual Spring Tea of the Friends of the Harrison Memorial Library will take place at the library in Carmel 3 p.m. Sunday, May 18. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Lani Fremier will be the speaker. Born and raised in Carmel, Ms. Fremier is the author of Beloved Eccentric, the biography of well-known Carmelite Allen Knight, her father. Ms. Fremier is currently engaged in editing the diaries of Ann Nash, a Carmel personality of the 1920s. The title of the talk is "Carmel Roots Go Deep." This promises to be a most interesting and entertaining afternoon. There is no charge, and refreshments will be served.

For more information call 624-1281 or 625-0818.

MISSION RANCH BARN DANCE BENEFITS RIVER SCHOOL

Vittles 'n Fiddles, an authentic Western barbecue and barn dance, will be held from 6 p.m. to midnight Friday, May 16 at the Mission Ranch Barn in Carmel. The event is sponsored by the Carmel River School Parent Teacher Association (PTA) as the group's annual spring fund raiser.

Activities planned for the evening, which is open to all adults in the community, include a complete barbecue dinner of steak or chicken provided by the Good Ol' Boys of Gilroy; dancing to live music by the Coast Ridge Boys; a no-host bar; beard, mustache and costume contests; and a drawing for prizes.

The grand prize to be given at the drawing is a five-minute grocery run at Albertson's Market in Carmel Rancho Shopping Center, donated jointly by Albertson's and the River School PTA. Some restrictions apply to the grand prize. Other prizes include a custom-made ultra suede suit, a family portrait, a birthday party, and many more. Tickets for the drawing are $1 each, or six for $5, and are available from River School students, at a table in front of Albertson's, and at the event. Winners do not need to be present at the drawing.

A variety of Western theme entertainment will be included in the evening, with a "sheriff" on duty to jail attendees who arrive in non-Western dress, and an array of whimsical awards offered to those who do.

The public is invited to attend in support of River School programs, but attendance is limited to individuals 21 and over. The total number of tickets is limited and subject to advance reservation.

For tickets call Shelley Nemeth at 625-2385. If still available, tickets will also be sold at the door.

FIRST LADY SLIDES HIGHLIGHT DAR MEETING

Mrs. Ray Stumbo, American History teacher and presently coordinator for the Language Bank for the Volunteers in Action, will be sharing her knowledge of, and interest in, Smithsonian Institution slides of First Ladies of the White House when she speaks to the Commodore Sloat Chapter of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution on Tuesday, May 20.

Luncheon chairman, Mrs. Frederick Coates, said that the event will be held this month at Rancho Canada on Carmel Valley Road and will begin at 12 noon. The usual business meeting will follow the program and will include Regent Mrs. William Gooley's report on the activities of the NSDAR Continental Congress just concluded in Washington, D.C.

The next luncheon meeting will be in September. Anyone interested in membership in the Daughters of the American Revolution may call Mrs. Gooley at 372-7492.

CBA lists problems

THE CARMEL Business Association is not wasting any time organizing an approach to problems it wants to tackle in the city.

During a meeting May 1 and a special follow-up meeting May 8, about 100 members and the CBA board participated in round-table discussions and identified what they saw as the most important issues for the business community in Carmel.

The meetings were based on what the CBA can do to help themselves and city government alleviate these problems. One of the rules: no pointing fingers at the city and telling them to do it.

In the May 1 meeting, moderator Toni Doyle of Resort II Me asked each table what they had identified as the most important problems for businesses in Carmel.

In the May 8 meeting, Doyle gave each table an issue to identify the "real" problem, i.e. the cause, and what solutions the CBA could offer. I (indulging in shameless plagiarism) borrowed her notes on the meeting.

Parking led the pack as the number one problem. After parking came — listed here in no particular order — quality of stores, escalation of commercial rents, bridging the gap between the city and the CBA, lighting and safety, and city zoning as it relates to business.

The "real" problems indentified with parking in the city were:

- Too many employees parking in the streets and not enough all-day spaces to accomodate them.
- One-hour parking is too short for many people to get what they need done in downtown.
- Too many mini parks taking up parking spaces.
- Delivery trucks that don't use loading zones in the commercial area.
- Lack of parking for diners and customers who require longer than one- or two-hour parking.

Suggestions on how the CBA could help these problems included forming a CBA parking committee to:

- Identify all potential employee (all-day) parking in Carmel and work with the employers to ensure that employees use those spaces.
- Request the city create more two-hour parking spaces.
- Provide membership expertise on any city studies or where it's needed.

Other suggestions include both human and financial support for a parking garage at Sunset Center and a shuttle system with monthly discount rates for Carmel business employees.

Some business people were concerned that the quality of new shops in Carmel had deteriorated and the number of discount stores had risen.

Suggestions about how to handle this problem include greater representation in the business licensing process (but don't ask me how), a review and perhaps a rewrite of the CBA by-laws to make it a more active and self-policing organization and review and enforce existing city ordinances pertaining to store quality.

The next problem, escalating commercial rents, is, in my opinion, the most serious problem the commercial district faces in Carmel. Every store or shop owner I talk to who is going out of business mentions rent as a major factor in their closing. High rents are particularly hard on service and resident-oriented businesses which have competition from lower rent cities on the peninsula and don't have the volume sales that knick-knack shops have.

PARKING WAS identified as the number one problem the Carmel Business Association wants solutions to. A parking structure at Sunset Center in the lot pictured here was one answer the business organization decided to concentrate on. The CBA made a list of problems and possible solutions it wishes to put its energies into this year. (Michael Gardner photo.)

The type of tourist coming to town has changed from "the good old days." These new folk don't come here and say to each other "Let's go out and spend $1,000 on a new rug while on vacation." It's more like, "What can we bring back to Aunt Edna that's Carmely and CHEAP." I've even been asked twice in the past month "Where's the McDonald's?" and I wasn't asked by some "too-hip" teenagers, either.

The CBA meeting identified the reasons for the rise in rents as a reflection of an increase in the price of property in town. As properties sell, new owners must charge more for rent to make up for higher mortgages.

Another problem identified in the meeting was that some long-time property owners are increasing rents too much and too fast. I know that some of these landlords have clauses in their lease agreements that state they can charge rents comparable to the rents in neighboring buildings. Both types of owners, it was pointed out, have a tendency to base their rents on the San Francisco index.

One suggestion to help alleviate the problem was a commercial property advisory commission made up of landlords, business people and real estate brokers who would

CARMEL YOUTH BASEBALL

BY MARY WALTER

Season's in full swing

THE EXCITING 1986 season is in full swing!

Current Bronco standings: Pine Inn, 5-1; Derek Rayne, 4-2; Carmel Valley Disposal, 2-4; La Playa, 1-5.

Derek Rayne beat CVD 11-3 May 5 to tie Pine Inn for a 3-1 division lead. Winning pitcher Frank Melicia also scored two runs. Brooks Juhring, Jimmy Gill and Carl Dauphine knocked out some good hits for CVD, but Derek Rayne held the lead to clinch their victory. Lee Walton had four RBIs and sparkled in the field for Derek Rayne.

Pine Inn won against La Playa May 6, 13-4. Mario Bertolucci scored three runs on three hits for the winners.

Derek Rayne and La Playa played an extra game this week, making up on May 8 for the rained-out game last week. Derek Rayne won, 12-1, with Damian Griss leading the hitting 3-for-4.

Saturday saw the first Bronco Division home run, as Brooks Juhring's three-run dinger and two-run ground-rule double led Carmel Valley Disposal to a 14-6 win against La Playa's Bain Smith, Adam Conway and Peter Briant. Andrew Martin had a great catch in left field for La Playa.

On Saturday Pine Inn beat Derek Rayne 12-7 in a hard-fought battle for the division lead. Catcher Cody West led Pine Inn with four RBIs while Danny Higgins cracked in a couple more; Derek Rayne's Steve Biliouris had a three-run triple.

In the Mustang Division, County Mounties beat Dick Bruhn 16-10 on May 6. Ben Thompson led County Mounties in hits.

On Saturday, Dick Bruhn won against Yates, Downer, 19-12. Alex Vorobiov went 4-for-4 for Dick Bruhn; Yates, Downer's Chris Brant was 3-for-3.

This week's featured Pinto team is Carmel Bay Company, with players Jack Camp, Benjamin Cook, Jamie Dorey, Rebecca Eagle, Jamille Griss, Jesse Lamb, Robbie Newman, Kristofer Pallastrini, Brendan Richards, Dylan Tescher, Lisa Walgenbach and Kevin Witherell.

In minor softball, Carmel Phillies lost to the P.G. Red Devils on Monday, 8-4, but came back in force on Friday to shut out Fort Ord No. 1, 9-0. Winning pitcher Lisa Bray had a triple, while Vanessa Gulla, Alana Brown, Amy Gray, Tiffani Meheen, Melissa Hill and Carrie Shiffman all had multiple hits.

In minor softball, County Bank beat Toro Park in five innings, 21-11. Contributing to the win were many great efforts by the County Bank players, including a double play with the bases loaded by Amy Tarentino and timely hitting by Emily Rubin and Sharon Dueker. Jessica Jacinto hit two doubles; Shelly Smith was the winning pitcher.

No more waiting in line

THE CARMEL Post Office has launched an experimental locker system that is designed to save customers time from standing in line plus making it possible to pick up packages during closed hours. Under the experimental program, customers who regularly receive packages will be given keys rather than yellow slips. Normally the customer would have to wait in line for the package. Pick ups also had to be made when the post office is open. Now, customers will receive a key in their mailbox. The key number matches one of 92 lockers in the lobby. The patron just unlocks the locker and pulls out the package. The key stays in the locker. The packages may be obtained any time the lobby is open. Above, postal clerk Claire Bandy slips a package in one of the lockers.

Rolling along

CARMEL HIGH students will participate in a Bike-a-thon to benefit St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital Saturday, May 17 starting at 8 a.m. at Carmel Mission's MacMahon Center. Allison Ryan, front, chairperson for the Carmel Mission Youth Ministry, sponsors of the event; urged community members to join in the fun, either as riders or sponsors. Riders will start at the mission and bike down Carmel Valley Road to the 20-mile mark in Carmel Valley, then return. Among those joining Ryan will be, from left, Mark Russak, Kim DeWitt, Alan Stron, Lanika Jones, and Byron Rudolph. Anyone interested in riding or supporting a rider should contact the ministry office at 624-6846 for details. (Mac McDonald photo.)

Toll-free scholarship information

The Scholarship Bank announces a new 800-number program for high school and college students needing instant access to private scholarships and loans.

According to The Scholarship Bank, over 500 million dollars in private financial aid is available to students in the form of scholarships, grants, summer internships and loans. The average dollar value of each grant is over $1,000, and the bank will send students in excess of 65 separate grants.

According to the director, students may qualify on the basis of major, occupational goal, geographic preferences, type of aid requested, religion, parent's union, military or employer background, and whether the student is willing to work in an internship, enter a contest or conduct specific research.

Students should call (800) 332-4432 or (800) 332-4431 (California residents) and will then receive applications to fill out.

According to the director, more than 30,000 students have used the services of the bank, a nationwide non-profit organization. Students may also send a stamped, self addressed envelope to 4626 N. Grand, "J," Covina, CA 91724 if time is not of the essence.

Cachagua residents sought for committee

Fifth District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman is seeking interested Cachagua area residents who would be available to work with the Monterey County Planning Department in formulating the upcoming Cachagua Area Plan.

This newly appointed Citizens Advisory Committee will begin work in July and will meet in regular sessions over the next six to 12 months.

The Cachagua Citizens Advisory Committee (CCAC) will advise the county planning department in its preparation of the Cachagua Area Plan, one of eight detailed planning areas within the Monterey County General Plan.

"This Advisory Committee is crucial to the formulation of the plan," Strasser Kauffman said. "The Cachagua area is among the county's most pastoral and beautiful, an area worthy of the most careful planning we can accomplish."

Cachagua area residents interested in serving on the CCAC are urged to contact Strasser Kauffman by mail at 1200 Aguajito Rd., Monterey, or call 649-6515.

identify the problems and act in an advisory capacity to buyers and sellers of commercial property.

However, CBA President Joan DeMers said they will be holding off on forming the advisory committee because landlords will be asked to address the rent situation at some of the meetings. Also, it was suggested that rents would drop as commercial spaces become increasingly difficult to fill. The large number of empty shops in Carmel is an indication that might be happening already.

"Bridging the gap between the city and the CBA" also led the field as a problem the CBA needs to deal with.

Members identified the lack of communication between the existing ad-hoc committees and merchants in general and apathy on the part of the general CBA membership as contributing to the schism.

The people attending the meeting generally felt a more cooperative atmosphere would be forthcoming from the new administration in city hall. However, they also felt the CBA needs to hunker down and work to ensure communication continues and flourishes.

A communication committee, it was suggested, could identify community aims in working together and bringing the problems and solutions to the city.

The members also decided that a membership drive was in order. Not only to increase the membership but to encourage those already in the CBA to actively participate in CBA activities — especially at meetings.

Current city zoning was another focus of the meeting. Zoning interferes with free trade in the market place and creates vacancies, according to some people.

It was pointed out that the city's new general plan advisory committee that reviews city zoning will address that problem, so it may have already been taken care of.

But some members of the CBA determined the organization should request that the city return to pre-1984 zoning (before the general plan went into effect) and offer assistance and participation in "this task."

Lighting and safety proved to be a more important issue than previously thought. One shop owner told attendees that one of his employees had been attacked in the area at the edge of the business district. While everyone agreed that the lack of street lights was charming and unique, it was also agreed that times and the world had changed, so lighting might be a necessity.

The CBA decided to create a safety committee which would identify problem areas and bring them to the attention of the city, request that the police night patrol start earlier and increase at closing time, and that the CBA sell small flashlights with the CBA name on them.

It was also decided to work on a closer relationship between the business community and residents. Barney Laiolo, husband of Councilwoman Elinor Laiolo, as the designated resident representative in the CBA, will be working on programs and functions to bring the two communities together and get residents involved with the CBA.

All in all, the CBA has determined to become a more active organization and take the initiative in dealing with some of the problems they perceive in the city. The CBA has also decided to have observers at as many city meetings as possible.

A... this takes participation by the business community as well as anyone who is interested. If you're interested in any of the committees or activities, contact the CBA at 624-2522. It might be fun.

THE ULTIMATE GAWKER

I spent one of those days last week that make this job really worthwhile. I got to travel around with Maria Wahl, vice president of Fox & Carskadon real estate firm and manager of the Carmel branch, on a special invitation-only open house tour of homes in the million dollar range. Though special tours like this are common in other Fox & Carskadon offices, this is the first time since the Carmel office opened last year this area has participated.

KING OR QUEEN of the Mountain might describe the future owners of this home on Highway 1 next to Bixby Bridge on the way to Big Sur. The home is listed with Fox & Carskadon for $2.9 million and includes 50 acres with access to a private beach. Of course, one does have to be in pretty good shape to get to the beach and back.

While I can't say I whipped out my checkbook and wrote a million dollar down payment, it certainly was tempting.

The day took me from 17-Mile Drive to a hilltop with a 360-degree view of the Big Sur coastline and the surrounding hills. If ever I was tempted to spend cash I will never see — much less have now — it was there. However, $2.9 million is a bit more than I wanted to spend.

The home is situated on top of Division Knolls in view of Bixby Creek Bridge. A window in the living room looks down onto the ocean where Wahl said the whales make a turn to go out into the ocean. In the opposite direction was Bixby Canyon, all green and lush and far below little homes of all shapes and sizes tucked away in the trees. The sky was blue, the sea was blue, and there wasn't a sound to be heard from anywhere around. What a place for a romantic evening by the fire.

I also visited a home in Carmel Highlands, a blue Mediterranean villa right off Highway 1. Designed by artist John O'Shea, it was as different from the Division Knolls home as could be. Buried in cypress trees, it's an older home with "a lot of character," including a little balconey overlooking the living room. Great for those evening get-togethers where live music is required. Have them all the time. Only $775,000 this time. I restrained myself.

While we drove from place to place, Wahl told me that Scenic Drive in Carmel was still the biggest seller and 17-Mile Drive the most prestigious in the area.

We looked at two homes in those areas. One on Scenic Drive at the corner of Santa Lucia Avenue recently remodeled by Carmel architect Charles Rose. It certainly was a transformation for the house which I remember as a semi-Hawaiian beach retreat. Now it's an airy, clean beach home. The 17-Mile Drive home was a return to the East Coast with its Georgian style and country setting.

Many of the people who purchased these houses, Wahl said, used them as second homes and, surprisingly enough, many of them were younger couples with children. Many of the older, more expensive homes come from estates, such as the Division Knolls house.

Location remains the primary factor in selling, she said, and people still want to be close to the beach.

Each area had its own look and feel and each home I saw seemed to reflect its area.

The home in Carmel Valley I saw, priced at $1.3 million, was like a mini-resort with guest house, stables and pool. Nice, new and sunny.

Shouldn't we all live like that, hmmm?

DR. DANIEL ELLSBERG TO ADDRESS NEW FORUM

In continuing its examination of creative alternatives to war, the New Forum, Carmel, presents Dr. Daniel Ellsberg at its monthly luncheon, 12 noon, Monday, May 19 at The Lodge at Pebble Beach.

Ellsberg, a Harvard College graduate and former U.S. Marine, is now a highly visible peace activist. He is best known for releasing the Pentagon Papers for publication to the New York Times in 1971.

Ellsberg is an expert in the field of nuclear strategy. He spent a decade as a high-level national security analyst for the Rand Corporation, the Defense Department, and the State Department. In 1961, he wrote the top-secret guidance for the Kennedy Administration's nuclear war planning. Dr. Ellsberg serves on the strategy task force of the Nuclear Weapons Freeze Campaign. He regularly takes part in demonstrations against the arms race and U.S. intervention in Central America.

In his belief that nuclear war is the "ultimate environmental issue," Dr. Ellsberg will address the New Forum on "Lying In State: How the Official Deception Puts National Security Policy Beyond the Control of Democracy."

Reservations for the New Forum luncheon and Ellsberg's lecture are $13 and must be made in advance by writing: The New Forum, P.O. Box 5595, Carmel, 93921; or by calling May Waldroup at 624-1803.

WORKSHOP ON ORAL HISTORY MAY 17

A workshop on oral history will be held from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., Saturday, May 17, in the Parish Hall at All Saints' Episcopal Church in Carmel. The cost is $20 per person; this includes a box lunch and wine or soft drinks served by Mediterranean Market. The workshop is being put on by the Monterey County Historical Society. The speakers will be world-recognized authorities on the subject who are professors of History at California State College at Fullerton.

Anyone wishing to participate may contact Pauline Stanley, Historical Commissioner Fifth District Monterey County at 624-2559; Kent Seavy, Historical Commissioner Fourth District Monterey County at 375-8739; or Meg Weldon, Historical Coordinator Monterey County, at the Monterey County Parks Department in Salinas at 424-1971.

CARMEL VOICE

BY SAM SALERNO

Love and golf

Johnny Carson still buffooning about the Carmel election of Clint Eastwood. His remark the other night was that two jaywalkers were picked up in Carmel...and hanged! He's given the election quite a ride during his late night show.

FROM TENNIS TO GOLF

Seen at Cypress Point, Clint Eastwood and tennis star Jimmy Connors. Don't know the score, but I'd bet on Big C.

Happy birthday to Dr. Brad Carl, Carmel's only dentist, who celebrated the event with a round of golf with his dad George who came out for the celebration from Ohio. Phil Dacey was the fourth. The Ranch, incidentally, has broken ground for its hotel which is situated on the back nine holes around the 12th hole. It will have a spectacular view when completed.

Harry Turner, golf professional at the Ranch, and his staff have kept the course in immaculate condition. By the way, Dr. Carl would not divulge his age, but he's a mere lad!

STRIKING IT RICH

Merv Addelson, who just tied the knot with TV commentator Barbara Walters, got his start in Las Vegas as a supermarket owner at a place called Market Town. Later he invested in a television station, KSHO, and during this time became a member of the Desert Inn Country Club where he met the likes of Allard Roen, Moe Dalitz, et al, all owners of the Desert Inn. We called it the DI in those days.

When that group moved the Tournament of Champions to La Costa (which they built), Merv went along with them. From there, Merv began to dabble in TV productions. The result was Lorimar Productions, which produces top-rated Dallas and Falcon Crest. Merv is a tenacious person and when he sets his mind to something, there is no stopping him. Great work, Merv.

FROM FURS TO TELEVISIONS

Ernie Batt, who was owner of Howard's in the Del Monte Center for many years and later opened a fur shop on Abrego Street above Federico's Shoe Shop, is now selling television time for MPTV. Ran into him at the Village Corner Restaurant as he prepared to record a commercial for Chattan's, a men's store next to the corner. Ernie sells the spots, produces them, and also voices the commercials. He's improved in each department. Above all, he's having a blast and enjoys his new profession.

Speaking of the media, Johnny Adams, host of "All That Jazz" on KRML, my old stomping grounds, giving me all the news about the station and how successful the new owners are with the jazz format. He named a list of national accounts now heard on the station. That is a good sign for any radio or TV station. National business is usually double the local rate.

SORRY TO SEE THEM LEAVE

Mark Erickson, whom we all love from KMST, is leaving the area to climb the ladder of success. He'll be voicing the news in Salt Lake City. Mark has made the rounds in Carmel at the Hog's and Jack London's and has a host of friends. He's a health nut and keeps in good shape engaging in all sports. His co-anchor, Theresa Lukenas, is heading for Columbus, Ohio, a major TV market. Our loss is Utah's and Ohio's gain!

HERE AND THERE

Dick Schoefield headed for Maui (Kapalua) and then off to the Far East. He'll take in Hong Kong and Thailand.

Terry Martin, Village Corner owner, in town on his way to Las Vegas for a convention of shopping center planners and owners. Terry's office is in New York City.

Bretty Langley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Langley of Carmel, in town to celebration Mother's Day. Brett is attending St. Mary's and is number one on the college golf team. He and a partner qualified for a two-man event at Spyglass Hill.

Ron Keister and wife Trish in town to meet behind closed doors with Business Exchange executives to try to set up a local office. Ron is headquartered in Foster City. He is also a member of AGA, the Advertising Golf Association of San Francisco.

Janet Coles of Carmel coming close to her first victory in some time on the LPGA trail only to be denied by Pat Bradley who shot a sparkling 65 in the final round to nose out Janet. But Janet picked up a healthy paycheck.

Peter "Inky" Incaviglia, Texas Ranger star from Monterey, finally getting his eye and starting to hit for average. Peter received more press than anyone coming to the majors since Mickey Mantle joined the Yankees years ago. During his initial slump, Peter was writing a column for a Texas newspaper and his manager told him to "forget it" and concentrate on hitting. Since that time, Peter has begun to hit the ball well. He'll find hitting is easier than writing.

KIDS' BEAT

BY CAROLE COLTER

Thanks to the community

IT'S EASY to roll off a breezy "thank you" as you pass a generous patron in the street, or to write a special note in acknowledgement of a gift given. We have done both on many occasions in the past two months for which the Carmel Youth Center, our current members, and all our members to come are exceedingly grateful.

What is hard to express are the feelings we have when we think of a community that so generously pulls together to help keep an institution alive and functioning for the benefit of its most important resource — kids.

As you have been reading in the Pine Cone over the last couple of months, we have had a great deal of financial support from our local service clubs. These include the Carmel Rotary, the Monterey Peninsula Volunteer Service (MPVS), the National Pro-Am Youth Fund, and the Clare and Gordon Johnson Annuity Trust, who together have contributed a life-saving $19,000.

In addition, our plight has reached the hearts of our local Carmel business community. Checks have been arriving every day with notes of encouragement and offers of personal help. The $10,000 raised to date by your generous support has made a major difference in the future of the youth center.

It is largely due to your continued support that we can look forward to a summer program, which might have otherwise been in jeopardy. Although more full-time employee cutbacks are in store, we will be providing a qualified part-time staff to supervise programs to run throughout the summer. We are also planning several field trips which will be supervised by returning employees on an all-volunteer basis.

So you see, we are all rooting for the youth center and are working for one solid goal: To provide a good, healthy recreational environment for our kids to utilize.

We plan to reach our goal.

OBITUARIES

Florence McDonald

Cremation took place at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea in Pacific Grove for Florence Merrill McDonald, a longtime resident of Carmel Valley, who died April 17 at the manor's medical unit. She was 81.

Born May 18, 1904 in St. Paul, Minn., she had lived at the manor since 1971. She was a member of the Carmel Presbyterian Church and the Carmel Foundation.

Survivors include three sons, John of Darien, Conn., Bruce of Glencoe, Ill., and Gordon of Greenville, S.C., and nine grandchildren.

The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements. Inurnment will be at a later date in Illinois.

Edward Hildebrand

Memorial services took place April 22 at the Paul Mortuary for Edward L. Hildebrand, a Carmel resident for 14 years, who died April 18 at Community Hospital. He was 82.

Born July 15, 1903 in Youngstown, Ohio, he was a sales executive in a construction materials firm in San Mateo.

He was a member of the Monterey Peninsula Country Club.

Survivors include two sisters, Elinore Taylor of Sacramento and Florence Finnie of Atlanta; one niece and one nephew.

Cremation took place at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea with inurnment in El Carmelo Cemetery.

John Davis

Cremation took place at the Paul Mortuary for John Davis of Carmel, retired University of California research zoologist and former director of the Hastings Natural History Reservation in Carmel Valley, who died May 1 at the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula. He was 69.

Born Dec. 1, 1916 in Woodmere, N.Y., he received a bachelor's degree in American history from Yale University and a doctorate in zoology from the University at California at Berkeley.

He served in the United States Army during World War II.

He was an assistant professor of biology and the curator of the Moore Laboratory of Zoology at Occidental College prior to his appointment at Hastings Natural History Reservation.

In 1960 he became director at Hastings, which is a field station of the University of California, and held that position until his retirement in 1982, when he was appointed to the Carmel Forestry Commission. He also served as a docent at Point Lobos State Reserve and as chairman of the reserve's advisory committee.

He was the author of more than 50 scientific papers and reviews and co-author with Alan Baldridge of The Bird Year, published in 1981.

Organizations in which Dr. Davis participated included the Sierra Club and its condor task force, the Point Reyes Bird Observatory, Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society, Friends of the Sea Otter, Monterey Bay Chapter of the California Native Plant Society and Point Lobos Natural History Association.

Professional activities included service as secretary, vice president and director of the Cooper Ornithological Society, assistant and associate editor of The Condor, and member of the panel of advisory editors, University of California Publications in Zoology.

Academic awards, honors and grants included John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Fellow, Fellow of the American Ornithologists Union, honorary member of the Cooper Ornithological Society, grant from Associates in Tropical Biogeography, and grant from the National Science Foundation to study in Peru.

He was a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and a member of Sigma Xi.

Survivors include his wife, Norma, and a daughter, Carol, both of Carmel; a son, John Steven of Flagstaff, Ariz.; two stepsons, Samuel Seydel of West Germany and Jonathan Seydel of Del Rey Oaks; and a brother, George of Fort Washington, Pa. His first wife, Betty, died in 1981.

Ashes have been scattered at sea. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the Sierra Club or to the Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula.

William DeAmaral

Memorial services took place April 29 at Carmel Mission for William L. DeAmaral of Marina, a Carmel native and life-long resident of the peninsula, who died April 26 at Community Hospital. He was 81.

Born Dec. 6, 1904, he was a heavy duty equipment mechanic and machine operator with his brother's firm, Frank DeAmaral Construction Co., before his retirement in 1969.

Survivors include his wife, Mildred; four daughters, Doris Bennett of Reno, Nev., Betty McLeod of Morgan Hill, Patricia Petty of Salinas and Sally Lindell of Marina; seven sons, Allen of Salinas, Jack and Thomas of Marina, Mervyn of San Jose and Martin, Dennis and Kenneth of Prunedale; and many grandchildren and great grandchildren.

Burial took place in Mission Memorial Park in Seaside. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

Mark A. Byrne

Memorial services took place May 4 at the Big Sur Grange for Mark Anthony Byrne, a 14-year Big Sur resident who died in a back country fishing accident in the Santa Lucia Mountains of Big Sur. He was 29.

Born Jan. 19, 1957 in southeastern California, he worked as a mason for the family-owned Byrne and Byrne Construction Co.

Survivors include his father, Ralph of Big Sur; his mother, Rosie of Costa Mesa; two brothers, Gregg of Big Sur and Ralph Jr. of Huntington Beach; two sisters, Janell Byrne and Bekie Aker, both of Costa Mesa; paternal grandparents, Bye and Bertie Byrne of Bishop; and several aunts, uncles, nieces and nephews.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

Every physician in practice for a long time must become interested in geriatric medicine, if only to keep up with the needs of his aging patients, says Dr. Irving S. Wright. Dr. Wright founded the American Federation for Aging Research, in 1981. Now 83 years of age himself, Dr. Wright has given up his busy New York City practice to devote all his attention to AFAR, which has already awarded more than $1 million in grants to 40 scientists from medical schools and research centers. Besides such grants, AFAR conducts professional meetings on aging and forums for the exchange of the latest information between doctors and scientists.

According to a nationwide survey taken by Media General and the Associated Press on American attitudes toward the elderly, the majority of people, 52 percent, feel that older citizens are not treated with enough respect in our country, yet most of them also said they'd like to live to be 100 years old.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Carmel's streets may or may not be improved; former friends may only nod as they pass, but the Pine Cone reminds both sides that we are a lucky people. We are privileged to live in the garden spot of the world. We enjoy prosperity, comfort and happiness no matter what troubles other peoples are enduring. Our contractors have waiting lists of clients, would-be renders are bidding against each other for residences, the Forest Theatre has arranged a fine program for this summer and the Pine Cone subscriptions list is daily increasing.

OLD ROOF IS REMOVED FROM MISSION:
NEW ONE GOING ON

Pigeons, mice, bats and termites were rudely disturbed this week when their homes were opened to the light of day in the process of tearing the old roof from Carmel Mission.

The work is proceeding under the supervision of Milton Latham, architect, and Harry Downie, curator of the mission. The skeleton of a dead eagle was also discovered in a dark corner of the old loft.

Original roof lines of the historic structure will be restored in the course of repairs, made necessary by the wear and tear of many years. During the past two rainy seasons, the roof has leaked badly, resulting in weakening of certain portions of the adobe walls. For the present, roofing paper will be used, as funds are not available for the tile roof which is eventually hoped for, both for effective protection and as historically appropriate. The tile can eventually be laid over the roofing paper which will fill in the breach for the present. During the current program of repairs the belfry tower will be strengthened and the floor of the church will be waterproofed.

KIDS, NOT OUR OWN, SOURCE OF LIBRARY BULGE

Harrison Memorial Library trustees and the city council, in a joint meeting yesterday afternoon at city hall, tried to find some means of solving problems caused by expanding use of the library by both adults and juveniles.

They discussed a branch juvenile library in a proposed city civic center, situated either on city-owned property at Junipero and Fourth streets or Sunset School; asking the Carmel Unified School District to contribute library space or funds; expanding the present library; and fees for library use from students residing outside the city limits.

No solutions were reached, but members of the library board stated that the best solution, from their standpoint, would be to expand with bond issue funds the existing library, thus covering the present garden frontage on Ocean A enue. This met with protests from city councilmen who deplored any loss of open space in the city.

FIRE DANGER EXTREME

Residents of Monterey County are urged to think about how they might make their home and wildland areas fire safe for the coming fire season by state forest ranger Richard J. Ernest.

Ernest said that on a statewide basis, this year's drought compares to that of 1923-24. He noted that the 1924 fire season was one of the worst years on record in terms of acres of vegetation burned.

To date, there have already been three brush fires in the San Benito-Monterey area. Brush and timber are drying out approximately a month early this year as compared to those years with normal rainfall. This will make this year's fire season particularly bad, according to Earnest. Unless there is some good cool weather this summer, there is more danger of major brush fires in the wildland areas than usual.

RENTAL PROPERTY OWNERS SUE CITY

Thirty-nine persons who own residential property in Carmel but live elsewhere have filed a lawsuit in Monterey County Superior Court against the City of Carmel, claiming that its new transient rental ordinance is unconstitutional.

The ordinance, which bans rentals for less than 30 days, went into effect April 30. The lawsuit was filed a day later.

Hidden Valley sale heralds program expansion

By ANNE PAPINEAU

'A SENSE OF stability and longevity" pervades Hidden Valley Institute for the Arts in Carmel Valley, following the May 1 purchase of the property by the David and Lucile Packard Foundation.

"We're very pleased of course because this assures the future use of the property for the programs," observed Peter Meckel, Hidden Valley founder and general director. "It means that instead of thinking in terms of a year or two at a time we can begin to think at longer range and we can plan to operate more efficiently.

"This will assure that contributions made now will have an impact 10 or 15 years down the line."

A non-profit arts education organization that perpetually struggled for survival, Hidden Valley has been located in the former White Oaks Theater near Carmel Valley Village since 1972. Until the sale closed this month, the 7.2-acre site was still owned by former White Oaks Theater founder Sally Church of Los Angeles.

According to Anne McGowan, Carmel attorney and president of the Hidden Valley board of directors, the board made an offer to Church's representatives in spring 1985 to try to purchase the property.

LOCATED NEAR THE entrance to Carmel Valley Village, the 7.2 acre site of Hidden Valley Music Seminars has been purchased by the David and Lucile Packard Foundation. The foundation has signed a 20-year lease with Hidden Valley so the arts institute can continue its operations there. (Anne Papineau photo.)

"We'd hoped to finalize that transaction Sept. 30, then we put in a request to the Packard Foundation to obtain monies toward the purchase," McGowan explained.

The Packard Foundation has supported Hidden Valley programs in the past, and offered to purchase the property and lease it back to the arts organization. The $400,000 sale closed on May 1.

"We're secure in knowing we have that 20-year lease," the board president said. "There's an option with the lease for us to purchase the property at the $400,000 price, so if Hidden Valley wants to — we can."

"The only stipulation is that we continue to be the kind of quality organization they see us as now," Meckel noted. "They wouldn't want us to turn into a country club or some other kind of organization."

Program development begun prior to the site purchase is still on the drawing boards, McGowan said.

"The results of our fund-raising campaign can hopefully now be used to expand programming," she said.

Mark Massel of Carmel Valley donated a $100,000 challenge grant for construction of a new dormitory building.

"We figure we need to match that challenge to put in the dormitory building, which would be used to house more students who come for the summer master classes," she added.

Another priority project at Hidden Valley is the construction of a second story atop the existing dance building.

"That will provide a 40-by-60-foot classroom/rehearsal space. We're very excited about it because it will increase the flexibility of the use of the campus," Meckel said.

"From a program standpoint, we can think in long-range terms instead of only from year to year. I think lastly it (the property purchase) serves as a signal to the community we're here to stay," he added.

Hidden Valley annually presents summer music seminars for high school age musicians, year-round dance instruction and performances, a Master Class series in which noted musicians guide gifted performers and a Masters Festival of Chamber Music. Dates for the 1986 Masters Festival are June 23 through Sept. 1.

The opera program, which Meckel called "a major element of the Hidden Valley curriculum," may now be offered annually instead of every other year.

While the Packard Foundation's purchase of the property assures site stability for Hidden Valley, the arts center will continue to make public appeals for funds to support programs and construction.

"Hidden Valley still is absolutely dependent on the support and interest of the community in order to exist," Meckel said. "The Packard Foundation's gift means that when other contributors do give, there is a sense of future in their gift."

Cannery Row Reunion will honor last of the breed Sunday, May 18

BEFORE CANNERY ROW was a collection of shops, restaurants and a world-class aquarium, it truly lived up to its name as "sardine capital of the world."

SARDINE CANS packed with the tasty fish fly by on conveyor belts at a Cannery Row operation during the heyday of the fishing industry. (Photo courtesy of the Pat Hathaway Collection.)

That strip of land along Monterey Bay was the wellspring for thousands of cans of the savory seafood packed there annually, and later the exploits of its residents were recalled in the pages of books by Nobel Prize-winning author John Steinbeck.

On Sunday, May 18, the canneries and the people who worked them will be paid tribute during the fourth annual "Great Cannery Row Reunion." The reunion will take place 7 to 10 p.m. in the Monterey Bay Aquarium.

Ordinary mortals will be admitted for a $5 fee. But former cannery workers and sardine fishermen are offered free admission by contacting the organizers of the event, The Cannery Row Foundation. Aquarium members will also be admitted without charge.

The reunion is organized by Michael Hemp, executive director of the foundation, whose goal it is to open a history center near the row to preserve this colorful slice of Monterey's past.

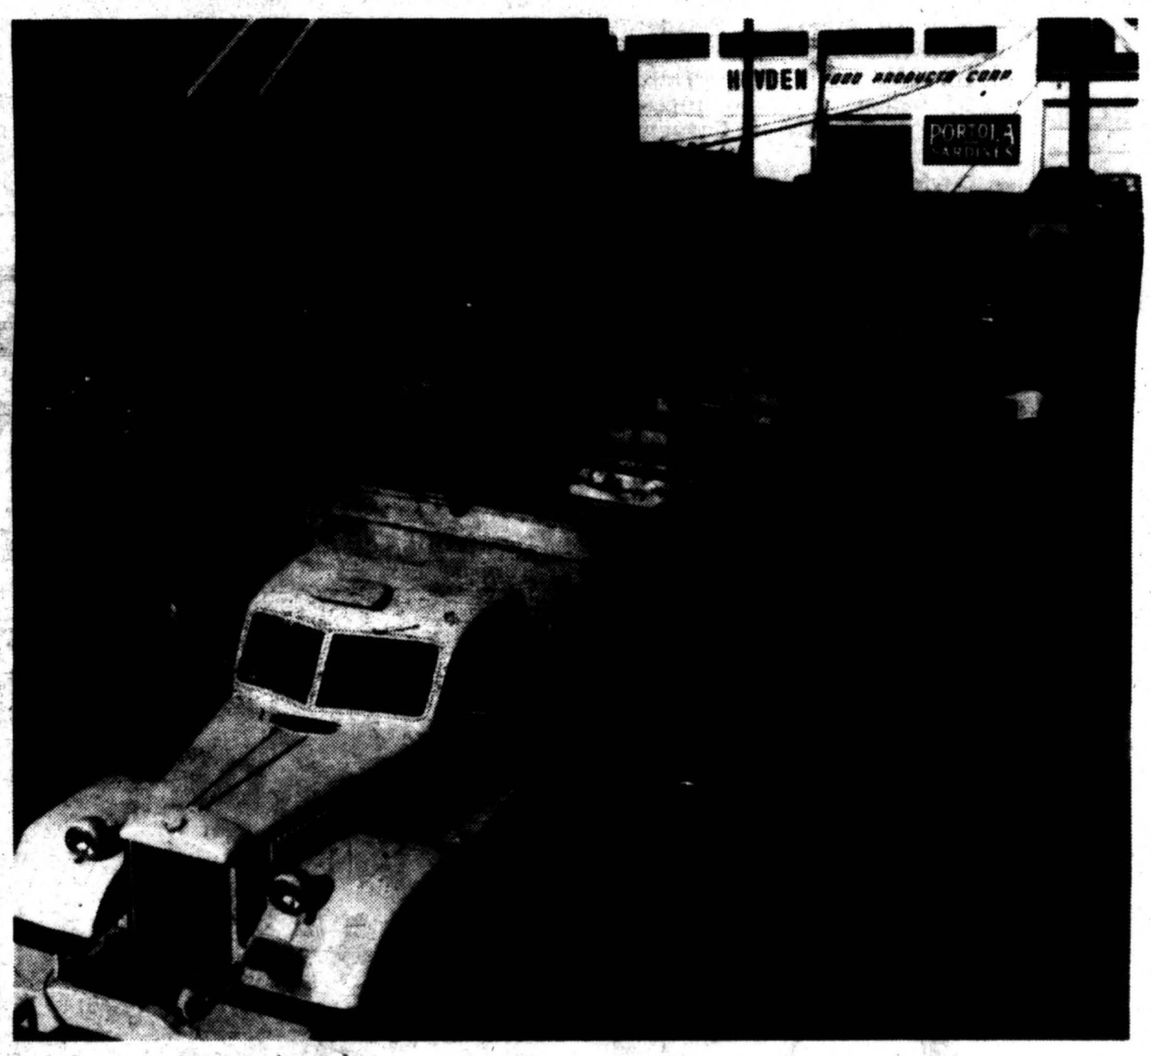
"We want to collect artifacts, photographs, memoirs and an oral history of what life and times were like 50 years ago," explained Hemp, a resident of Carmel.

There is a distinct note of urgency in Hemp's plea, since he admits that his most valued resource — those Cannery Row alumni — are "claimed by the obituaries every day."

"There is not one historical marker on Cannery Row," Hemp noted. "Until 1984 the City of Monterey was unable to begin a program of historical markers because the research hadn't been accomplished. If I get a million dollars from the endowment for the humanities 10 years from now, they can stick it in the toilet, because the resource will be long gone."

According to Hemp, the "last of the old guard" will be in attendance at Sunday's reunion. They are the skippers of the boats that plied Monterey Bay in search of sardines, and they now range in age from their 70s to 90s.

The reunion, Hemp explained, is a "celebration of our sardine heritage. It offers a chance to interact with these people who made Monterey the sardine capital of the world. Some of these people canned fish in 1926."



CANNERY WORKERS work on a truck loaded with sardines just down the street from the Hovden cannery, now the site of the Monterey Bay Aquarium where the Great Cannery Row Reunion 1986 will be held May 18. (Photo courtesy of the Pat Hathaway Collection.)

The cannery workers and fishermen will be identified by blue ribbons marked "alumni."

"It's our badge of honor for these people who graduated from one of the toughest schools of hard knocks in America," Hemp said.

The admission fee for the fourth annual reunion will go toward funding a permanent Cannery Row exhibit, he stated.

Hemp described the sardine era as "basically the first 50 years of this century, which embraced two world wars, prohibition, the Great Depression, and this whole enigmatic industry that canned fish right up to its suicidal demise."

Because he maintains that the human insights of Cannery Row are the most valued, Hemp stressed that it is important to try to contact as many "Cannery Row alumni" as possible and record their memories. The Cannery Row reunions, he discovered, brought a surpising number of the remaining workers out of hiding.

"I compare it to a huge mosaic that we try to assemble in a race against time," he noted.

Tony and Sara Souza will be honored on Sunday as "Cannery Workers of the Year." This husband and wife team once worked in the Hovden Cannery, which formerly stood on the site of the Monterey Bay Aquarium.

"They've been long-time supporters of not only the construction of the Monterey Bay Aquarium but they are virtual stalwarts in what's left of the canning community," Hemp explained.

While the Great Cannery Row Reunion 1986 represents a serious effort to gather both history and funds, it is also designed to be "an honest celebration of our sardine heritage."

The reunion will feature historical slide shows of fishing and canning, a "Skipper's Row" of remaining skippers and crew of Monterey's purse-seiner fleet, net mending demonstrations, book show, the film Street of the Sardine by Eva Lothar, a food sampling faire by Cannery Row's restaurants, a drawing and historical photograph exhibits.

For more information about the Great Cannery Row Reunion or the work of the Cannery Row Foundation, write P.O. Box 1882, Monterey, 93940, or call 375-3882.

I Cantori Di Carmel to perform at Carmel Mission

SAL FERRANTELLI, instructor of vocal music at Monterey Peninsula College and former member of the San Diego Civic Light Opera Company, leads I Cantori Di Carmel in its spring concert series to be performed in Carmel Mission Basilica. For ticket information, call 625-0944 or 659-3937.

MUSIC OF THE Romantic era will be performed by I Cantori Di Carmel during concerts scheduled in the Carmel Mission Basilica. Sal Ferrantelli directs the chorus, which will appear at 8 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, May 17-18.

Two motets by Anton Bruckner, Brahms' "Song of Fate," and the Faure Requiem comprise the program. Soloists joining I Cantori for the Faure will be soprano Velvali Huston and baritone Reg Huston. A full orchestra will accompany the pieces by Brahms and Faure, while the motets will be performed a cappella.

Soprano Velvali Huston has performed often with the Hidden Valley Music Seminars as well as with the Hartnell College Western Stage. Her roles include Zerlina in Don Giovanni, Lauretta in Gianni Schicchi and Eliza in My Fair Lady.

She will perform with Studio Lirico in Stia, Italy this summer and will sing in Galuppi's opera Il Filosofo di Compagna during the festival there in July.

Reg Huston is the resident baritone and director of vocal programs at the Hidden Valley Music Seminars in Carmel Valley. He has been heard as soloist with I Cantori Di Carmel in Beethoven's Mass in C, Haydn's Mass in D and the Mozart Requiem.

He is known to Monterey Peninsula residents for his performances with the Hidden Valley Opera. His roles there have included Leporello in Don Giovanni, Dr. Bartolo in The Barber of Seville, and Tevye in Fiddler on the Roof.

This summer he will sing in the Mozarteum production of The Marriage of Figaro in Salzburg, Austria. At the conclusion of a six-week European tour of that opera, he and his wife will relocate in Germany.

Born and raised in San Diego, Dr. Ferrantelli received his bachelor of arts and master's degrees in music from San Diego State University. He taught at the college for a year after receiving his master's, and was involved with the musical direction of several of the musicals while at San Diego State. He was also a member of the company of the San Diego Civic Light Opera while in San Diego.

Traveling to Indiana University, he pursued his doctoral studies under the guidance of Julius Hereford. Ferrantelli returned to teach in San Diego for one additional year before receiving the appointment to Monterey Peninsula College in 1981. Almost immediately after arriving in Monterey, he became involved with I Cantori Di Carmel and has been with the group since its inception.

In addition to his busy teaching and performance schedule, Ferrantelli adjudicates at choral festivals and vocal competitions around California.

Tickets may be obtained at Do Re Mi Music in The Barnyard, Carmel; Bookworks in Pacific Grove; The Book Tree in Monterey and Center Stage ticket outlet, or by calling 625-0944 or 659-3937. The price of admission is $9.

'The Wizard of Oz' retold with music and dance at Hidden Valley

THE STORY of Dorothy and her journey down the Yellow Brick Road to Oz will be interpreted as a jazz ballet Friday through Sunday, May 16 to 18, Hidden Valley Theatre, Carmel Valley.

John Pasqualetti, dance program artistic director, provides upbeat choreography for this contemporary version of L. Frank Baum's children's classic, The Wizard of Oz. Music for the production is by Jason Anderson, Hidden Valley dance program pianist.

He bases his jazz interpretation on music from the original film score by the late Harold Arlen. Anderson is known to many peninsula residents as choir director and composer for the Carmel Mission Basilica.

Mary Ann Seymour executes John Pasqualetti's contemporary costume designs in a spectrum of colors. Seymour, a Watsonville native, spent nine years as company manager and costumer for the Pacific Ballet in San Francisco when Pasqualetti served as its artistic director.

More than 60 dancers perform in The Wizard of Oz. Pasqualetti's trademark of using "live" scenery is evident. Several children are cast as a moving Yellow Brick Road. The role of Dorothy is danced by 13-year-old Erica Lewis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leland Lewis of Carmel; her dog Toto, by Dana Leidig, daughter of the Ted Leidigs of Carmel.

Gloria Simon, a registered nurse from Salinas, is the Scarecrow. Simon has been accepted in the upcoming summer program of the Dance Theater of Harlem in New York City.

Appearing as the Wicked Witch of the North is Virginia Bell of Carmel Valley. Bell appeared earlier this season as Mrs. Crachit in Pasqualetti's ballet A Christmas Carol. Also from Carmel Valley are Elvina Scott as the Tin Woodsman and Rosina Didyk as the Cowardly Lion.

All performances of The Wizard of Oz take place in Hidden Valley Theatre, Carmel Valley Road at Ford Road.

Performances are scheduled at 8 p.m. Friday, May 16; at 2:30 and 8 p.m. Saturday, May 17; and at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, May 18.

The production is one-and-a-half hours long including one intermission. Tickets are $8 for adults and $5 for children, 12 and under.

They may be purchased in advance from Hidden Valley 659-3115; Country-wide Crafts, The Barnyard, Carmel; How To Do Anything Bookstore, Lobos Court, Carmel; Abinante Music Store, Monterey; Prim and Proper, Pacific Grove.

Guys and Dolls

Guys and Dolls, "a musical fable of Broadway," opens Thursday, May 15 in the Monterey Peninsula College Theater. Directed by James Dunn, Guys and Dolls is populated by the hard-boiled characters immortalized in Damon Runyon's short stories. The cast includes Danny Gochnauer as Sky, Christy Laschiver as Sarah, LaVonne Rae Andrews as Miss Adelaide and Don Porter as Nathan Detroit.

Show time is 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday, May 15-18. Tickets are $8 for general admission, $6 for students, senior citizens and military and $4 for children under 13.

For reservations, call 646-4213 after 4 p.m.

•

Evita

Evita, the provocative rock opera based on the life of Eva Peron, is the Fort Ord Cabaret Theatre's submission to the 1986 Forscom Performing Arts contest. The musical travels from the slums of Argentina, birthplace of Eva, to the glittering homes of the Argentine aristocracy that Evita ruled as first lady of the land.

Evita will open Friday, May 16 and run Fridays through Sundays until June 22. The show begins at 8 p.m. Admission is $6 general, $4 for the military. The theater is on Fourth Street at Fourth Avenue, behind the Beiter Dental Clinic, Fort Ord. Reservations: 242-6337.

•

Rimers of Eldritch

The Forest Theater Guild in cooperation with Monterey Peninsula College inaugurates its three-show season with Lanford Wilson's Rimers of Eldritch. The play concludes its run Saturday, May 17 at the historic Outdoor Forest Theater, Mountain View and Santa Rita, Carmel.

Admission is free to The Rimers of Eldritch, which is presented at 7 p.m.

Directed by Hamish Tyler, the play will feature 18 of Tyler's students from the Robert Louis Stevenson School theater department. Wilson's play tells of a dying town in the Midwest.

No reservations are required to attend, but audience members are advised to dress warmly. Playgoers may bring picnic meals to the theater for enjoyment before the production.

•

Harold and Maude

Colin Higgens' stage adaptation of the cult film Harold and Maude continues at the GroveMont Theater Arts Center.

The play tells of Harold, a proverbial Poor Little Rich Kid who at 19 has made several suicide attempts in a plea for attention. Harold really learns how to live when he takes up with the elderly, wacky Maude.

Directed by Nick Zanides, the production stars Danny Harray and Rosamond Goodrich in the title roles. Featured performers include Florence Larson, Jim Jensen, Ellis Allbee, George Goncalves, Chris Ingram, David Stein, Sky Rappaport, Maria Cates, Cyndi Coomer and Laurie Dickie.

Harold and Maude plays 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays and 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. Sunday, May 18. Thursday and Sunday tickets are $6.50 general, $5 for students and senior citizens. Friday and Saturday tickets are $7.50 general; $6 for students and seniors. The theater is at 320 Hoffman St., Monterey. Reservations: 649-6852.

THEATER REVIEW
BY JOANNE TENENBAUM

'Harold and Maude' alternately stumbles, soars

COLIN HIGGENS' stage adaptation of the film Harold and Maude, on stage at the GroveMont Theater in New Monterey, is the story of a lugubrious, uptight young man's encounter with a free spirited octogenarian.

In love with the idea of death, 19-year-old Harold's hobby is staging convincing, violent suicide scenes, each more spectacular than the last, in a losing battle to win the attention of his unflappable mother. The apparently lifeless body dangling from the chandelier draws the hoped-for blood-curdling shriek from the new maid, but Harold's mother, for whom this is possibly a rerun, merely remarks on his lack of timing.

Harold's problem seems to be that, in a world of muted grays strewn with silver tea sets and peppered with his mother's endless conversations with socialites and hair dressers, he cannot get a grip. Only violent death seems to have any vitality. In between committing ersatz acts of violence, Harold likes to attend funerals. It doesn't matter whose. One day Harold's funeral break is interrupted by an energetic old lady who has rescued a plant from the frontage of a downtown building and now is about to plant the tree in a hospitable spot in the cemetery.

Thus begins a relationship that will change Harold from a diffident observer of the dolorous into an enthusiastic participant in the here and now, for Maude introduces Harold to one simple pleasure after another, until even he cannot help noticing that you don't have to die to live.

Harold and Maude adapts uneasily from screen to stage, most apparently in the endless succession of many short scenes and changes of place. The resources of GroveMont's small stage are strained by the necessity to move the characters from drawing room to oceanside to forest and so on. The whimsical staging is managed well enough, but the rapid succession of brief scenes is ultimately tiring and remains essentially an attempt to stage film.

Despite Rosamond Goodrich's likable and believable Maude and Danny Harray's convincingly inexperienced Harold, those who dislike multiple platitudes should skip this one. The script's greatest fault is, pound for pound, the vast weight of fluff Maude is forced to speak. "Trust your feelings, Harold," "Take a risk, get hurt," she exhorts. "We were given life to live it." Lots of sidewalk philosophy of, by now, the most hackneyed east meets west variety.

To her credit, Goodrich outclasses the script, bringing a lovely, infectious enthusiasm to her role that makes young Harold's infatuation with her quite believable. For his part, Harray captures the attitude of uptight neurosis with tentative postures and expressions that look just right.

Nick Zanides' attentive direction is evident in the smoothness of the scene changes and the skillfullness with which Harold's ambitious "suicides" are pulled off. Steve Judge has done a fine job of underscoring the script with color, both in the costumes and the sets.

Harold and Maude is often very funny, with farcical high spots built around Harold's deathy exhibitions. The prize for these goes to Laura Dickie as Sunshine Dore, the computer-selected date with whom Harold meets his exhibitionistic match. Dore knows just what to do with a collapsible dagger. This little scene is skillfully directed and wonderful to watch, a comic high spot in this lengthy, very busy show.

Florence Larsen and Jim Jensen, as Harold's mother and the beleaguered Father Finnegan, respectively, pack a lot of expertise and entertainment into their roles. Larsen's own encounter with Maude is a graceful little comedy of errors, and Jensen's fatherly attempt to explain the details of marriage to Harold is priceless.

Despite a number of able performances, Harold and Maude does not match the polished smoothness of GroveMont's Crimes of the Heart or Duet for One, both staged earlier this season. The theater's small stage seems strained to hold all the scaled-down settings and changes of scene, the lighting, especially in the drawing room scenes, is unkindly harsh, and the attempt to convey multiple outdoor settings with projected shapes and sound effects did not work well for me.

But Harold and Maude has many enjoyable moments and a wealth of nicely managed business. The message is unlikely to knock your socks off, but you won't have any trouble remembering it, either. It's repeated a lot.

ADOLPHINE CAROL will lead a seven-week course on intuitive development and meditation at the Cherry Foundation beginning Tuesday, May 20.

AT THE CHERRY FOUNDATION
BY LINDA COPPINS

New class to begin at Cherry Foundation

ADOLPHINE CAROL is a familiar name to peninsula residents. As an intuitive counselor, healer, and teacher for the past decade, she has helped many people attain personal growth, and find new sources of energy, integrity and harmony. Beginning Tuesday, May 20, she will teach a seven-week course on intuitive development and meditation at the Cherry Foundation.

You may have heard Adolphine's programs on KAZU: "Doors of Perception," or "Jazz to Go." She was in media for many years, as actor, and director and producer of TV and radio shows and commercials. At a critical point in her life when changes were needed, she had a psychic reading. This opened some doors. She realized her own intuitive abilities and studied at the Berkeley Psychic Institute. She later lived in solitude for nine months, and this helped her get more in touch with herself.

Former student Ellen Saxby says, "Adolphine's class has been the most important learning event in my recent years, both personally and professionally." Adolphine radiates a sense of calm, a person truly in tune with herself. She is well-rounded. In addition to her very busy schedule, she scuba dives, jobs, and studies aikido.

She believes it is crucial to have tools for living today, since "we are constantly being pulled off center." She views intuition as a direct link to our soul and God. Her class will meet Tuesdays from 7 to 9 p.m. from May 20 through July 1. The fee is $125. To register, call Adolphine at 624-0919.

Theatrical training program initiated

The Western Stage of Hartnell Collece has formed a training program for actors.

This one-year program will include such studies as the language of acting, characterization, body mechanics, theater movement, singing for actors, the art of makeup, voice and diction and the art of auditioning.

All credits earned in this program will be transferable to the California State University System, and, of course, can be applied to an A.A. from Hartnell.

This alone would make this program unusual, but The Western Stage is going a step further. While most apprenticeships require tuition, The Western Stage is offering scholarships and stipends to every apprentice in the program.

Anyone interested in receiving more information on this apprenticeship, or in making an audition appointment should phone Taft Miller or Joyce Lower at 758-8211, ext. 258, or 758-2091, or write to The Western Stage, 156 Homestead Ave., Salinas, 93901.

Carl Jung group slates potluck

AN INFORMAL potluck reception and formation of interest groups will launch the next series of events of the Monterey Peninsula Friends of C.G. Jung, to begin 6 p.m. Friday, May 16 at All Saints' Church, Ninth and Dolores, Carmel.

Those who attend are requested to bring their favorite entree to share with others.

Among the interest groups to be formed are dream sharing, book study, men's and women's support, art interpretation, Greek myths and archetypes, synchronicity, centerpoint and dreambody.

Other upcoming events include:

• "Neuro-Linguistic Programming, Consciousness, Communication, Culture" a talk/discussion with Peter Little, M.S., 7:30 p.m. Saturday, May 24 at All Saints' Church, Ninth and Dolores Carmel;

• Film presentation, A Matter of Heart — The Extraordinary Journey of C.G. Jung into the Soul of Man. Suzanne Wagner, who conceived and wrote the film, and her husband, George Wagner, its executive producer, are expected to attend, 1 p.m. Sunday, June 15 at the Dream Theater, 301 Prescott, Monterey.

Cooking classes taught at hotel

Personalized, hands-on gourmet cooking classes will be presented in Delfino restaurant in the Monterey Plaza Hotel beginning Tuesday, June 3, announced Food and Beverage Director Marc Vandenhove.

"So many of our friends have asked about the secrets of our Northern Italian cuisine that we finally decided to show them how and let them do it themselves," Vandenhove said.

The cooking classes will meet at 10:30 a.m. each Tuesday in the Delfino restaurant and will be limited to 12 students. Each class will conclude with the serving of the dishes prepared by the students during the class.

Students will be able to enjoy their creations along with an appropriate wine selection to complement the meal. Proper presentation and serving of the meal and wines will be demonstrated during the normal luncheon hours in Delfino.

The series of four once-a-week cooking classes will also enhance students' knowledge of the "how-to's" of entertaining: planning menus, matching wine selections and creating elegant table settings.

"Most skillful cooks recognize that gourmet food preparation — and entertaining — is an art, and goes beyond reading cookbooks and recipe files. But it doesn't have to be difficult, once you learn how," Vandenhove added.

Demonstrations and preparation of the artistic Northern Italian cuisine will be conducted in Delfino's unique exhibition kitchen. Featuring a rare Genovese oven, imported from Italy and assembled in Monterey, this dining room kitchen also includes specially crafted rotisseries and mesquite broilers.

Each of the four classes will cost $30, including luncheon and wines.

THE SANTA CRUZ Baroque Festival Players, from left, Leslie Hirsch, Leta Miller, M. Luciana Lombardi and Linda Burman-Hall, will perform "Treasures of the High Baroque" and "17th Century Discoveries" during a free concert Sunday, May 18 in Steinbeck Forum of the Monterey Conference Center. Doors open at 6:30 p.m.

Baroque treasures presented free

'TREASURES OF THE High Baroque" will be performed during the final concert series offered this season by the Santa Cruz Baroque Festival. The concert will begin at 7 p.m. Sunday, May 18 in Steinbeck Forum of the Monterey Conference Center, Del Monte and Alvarado streets, Monterey. Admission is free.

"Treasures of the High Baroque" will offer a program of work by French masters — Francois Couperin, Jacques Hotteterre and Rameau — and the German masters of the 18th century, J.S. Bach and Telemann.

Recreation programs accept registration

An array of summertime recreational activities of interest to the entire family has been organized by the City of Monterey Parks and Recreation Department.

There are more than 100 selections to choose from and many are scheduled to begin during the week of June 16 to 21.

Monterey City residents have first priority to register for the activities and two full weeks have been set aside for this purpose; the dates for Monterey City resident priority registration are May 19 through June 2. Non-Monterey residents and late Monterey resident registration begins on June 2.

Summer is the Parks and Recreation Department's biggest and busiest season. There are a number of activities especially designed to keep area children active during this extended vacation period.

Information is summarized in the Summer Activities Guide, a 64-page booklet.

Copies can be picked up at the department's administrative office, 546 Dutra St., and at other city park and recreation facilities. For more information, call 646-3866.

Live cannon punctuate Sunday 'Pops in the Park'

AN OPPORTUNITY to hear the 1812 Overture performed with live cannon shots arrives Sunday, May 18 during the annual "Sunday in the Park" pops concert presented by the Monterey County Symphony and the Naval Postgraduate School.

Maestro Clark E. Suttle, music director and conductor of the county symphony, will lead the orchestra in a program ranging from Copland to Sousa.

Concertgoers are invited to arrive early, bring their picnic baskets and enjoy an outdoor meal on the grounds of the former Del Monte Hotel, now the Naval Postgraduate School.

Gates will open at noon, and the concert starts at 2 p.m. Admission is free.

The featured work of the afternoon will be Tchaikovsky's rousing 1812 Overture. Live cannon shots will be provided by six howitzer cannon of the Service Battery 5th of the 15th Field Artillery, 1st Lt. Timothy Mock, Commanding Officer, from the 7th Infantry (Light) of Fort Ord.

Sunday's program will also include Fanfare for the Common Man by Aaron Copland, La Forza Del Destino Overture by Giuseppe Verdi, Serenata by Leroy Anderson, Blue Danube and Thunder and Lightning Polka by Johann Strauss, 1812 Overture by P.I. Tchaikovsky and Stars and Stripes by John Philip Sousa.

The free concert is made possible by a grant from Valley National Bank and the Musicians Performance Trust Fund.

May is High Blood Pressure Month

The Central Coast Visiting Nurse Association will oversee a free blood pressure clinic, to take place from 2 to 4 p.m. Wednesday, May 21, at the Red Cross Chapter House, Dolores Street and Eighth Avenue, Carmel. For details, call 373-8943.

Three-day antiques show, sale set

HEIRLOOMS, Orientalia, dolls and other treasures will be the order of the day during the 12th annual Monterey County Antiques Show and Sale, organized as a benefit for the Monterey County Unit of United Voluntary Services.

The show and sale will take place Friday through Sunday, May 16-18, in the Agriculture Building and Exhibit Hall at the west end of the Monterey Fairgrounds. The fairgrounds can be reached by taking the Casa Verde Way exit off Highway 1.

Proceeds from the traditional event will be used to support charitable programs served by the local unit of United Voluntary Services throughout Monterey County.

Explorama catches a ride with Cunard's QE2

EACH JANUARY the Queen Elizabeth 2, flagship of the Cunard Line and one of the last of the world's great ocean liners, sails out of the New York harbor on an 80-day, 30,000-mile voyage; a dream trip fitting the royal image of its name.

At 8 p.m. Thursday, May 15, award-winning producer Douglas Jones will appear in person at Carmel's Sunset Theater to present his film on this voyage, The Great World Cruise of the Queen Elizabeth 2. Jones will also present his film, an exclusive Bay Area engagement for San Francisco-based Explorama Travel Film Series, in Sunset Theater at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. Friday, May 16.

PRODUCER/DIRECTOR Doug Jones will narrate in person the Explorama travel documentary, The Great World Cruise of the Queen Elizabeth 2.

Viewers are given an inside look at the elegant 67,000-ton, 13-story Queen Elizabeth 2, and join her journey to 24 ports of call, from Barbados to Bangkok. Included in film highlights are many of the world's greatest ports — Rio, Cape Town, Hong Kong, Honolulu, Acapulco and 19 other exotic locales such as Ceylon, India, Kuala Lumpur, Singapore, Japan, Korea, Mauritius, Belem, Curacao and the Panama Canal.

Reserved tickets, $6.75, are available at BASS outlets, the Mail Box at Eighth and San Carlos in Carmel, 625-5210, or call toll-free (800) 441-4733.

Jones comes to the travel documentary business from a varied background. While studying for his degree in radio and television broadcasting at the University of Missouri, he owned and operated a music school, teaching more than 800 students to play guitar, banjo and mandolin.

He's worked as a professional entertainer, a radio annoincer, a European tour guide and a New York theatrical producer. For six years he owned one of the leading antique galleries in the Midwest.

Jones has produced 10 feature-length travel films and his lecture season includes more than 200 platform appearances annually.

ART NOTES
BY SAM COLBURN

The changing ways of seeing

'THE WAY THINGS look" is a most intriguing phenomenon of art. What the eye actually sees cannot be put down on a flat surface nor reproduced except through holography. It is true that three-dimensional work, sculpture, can come very close to cloning. Very few artists working on the flat attempt the impossible. We used to call those who did "magic realists."

To achieve physical reality is not the function of art. What the artist presents is his own personal imagery. In a way it is a revolt against the tyranny of subject matter, or his transmutation of same. Happily enough, "the way things look" changes. We are now in a period when anything goes. This is both good and bad. Expression was severely restricted during the School of the Academy. Perhaps the greatest breakthrough came with the new "seeing" of Les Impressionists. Before that there had been, of course, the discovery of perspective which qualifies the way things look, and does not have much to do with art.

I have heard the story that when Van Gogh's brother decided to close his gallery there were some canvasses lying about. He told his helper to throw them away and among them were paintings by Derain and Vlaminck. Several years ago, I saw an exhibit of Impressionist paintings at the Wally F Gallery in Beverly Hills, and there was not one under $250,000.

•

ALTHOUGH THIS is a beautiful meeting of land and sea, it is good to get away now and then. I have recently returned from a trip to the Western Slope. This is that part of the Rockies west of the Continental Divide in Colorado. My son and I stayed in Aspen for three days. The Aspen Museum of Art was presenting a show of the paintings, drawings, and cutouts of children. There were two floors devoted to these works.

What has always impressed me about the painting or drawing of kids is their intuitive use of space. The concept of horizon or perspective has not entered their minds. I realize that their palette is limited to the colors provided by the schools, but they nearly always use color that is not jarring. Aspen is a community devoted to the housing, feeding, and entertainment of thousands of skiers and tourists. I am happy that this mountain community takes the time and thought to present a show like this. The work comes from towns close by also.

Clutching to the tower of a building on the main street going into Aspen is a gigantic eagle made of a shiny metal, probably aluminum. This enormous bird is surreal and rather frightening. There is another sculpture by the same artist down near the Roaring Fork river which cuts through town. This is a man on horseback — again of heroic size. Perhaps these works are big because the Rockies are big, and I suppose in this way they are in scale.

We went on from Aspen to Marble, then through Ouray to Durango. Marble used to be the source of a pure white marble, and the Washington Monument is made from this stone. Now there are big chunks of it piled up alongside the road. We saw no art until we arrived in Durango. About even with the second story of one of the buildings, there is a bull moose made of plaster which is, of course, left over from the old days.

It is the only city in which there were any murals, and they were of an earlier age in the town also. What was interesting was the fact that they had not been painted out. These paintings on the outside walls of buildings were large. One was concerned with two boxers and a referee. Jack Dempsey, "The Manassa Mauler," had just knocked out his opponent. Although they were boxing gloves, they were fighting in street pants and shirts.

After leaving Durango we drove south and west to see a mammoth sculpture. It is called the Grand Canyon. The Colorado River flowing quietly along the bottom hardly seemed capable of this amazing erosion. After this viewing we headed diagonally across Arizona, entered California at Blythe, and continued on to San Diego. The West is very sparsely settled.

•

OVER AT THAT sharp contemporary gallery, called Site 311, in Pacific Grove, there is an exhibit of watercolors by Jeffrey Becom entitled "Frescoed Walls." Mr. Become was an architect before becoming a fulltime artist. The painting of most architects is inclined to be dry and precise and too influenced by professional rendering. He has overcome their use of space, and what we call "the picture plane" becomes through his eyes exciting graphically. The space "holds well." This is a somewhat mysterious term and refers to the interaction of the elements in a painting.

In two of the works he is not concerned with frescoes, but with groups of buildings reflected in water. The forms are centered, but there is an organic wholeness. This show has a certain flow. It has feeling. These are fragments from the past. All is ancient, but all is new. These watercolors can be seen at 311 Forest Ave. through June 3.

•

W.F. STONE, JR., is having an exhibit in the Beardsley Room of the Carmel Art Association. I like to call him Bill Stone. He is a mature artist. Bill knows what he wants to do and does it very well.

There is nothing indecisive or tentative in his painting. It is strong in design and color. These watercolors are involved, for the most part, with ships and harbors. Apparently Bill has painted along our east coast, in Scotland, and in Japan.

THE GRAND CANYON and Colorado River are captured in pencil and India ink wash by Sam Colburn during his recent exploration of the American West. Colburn returned to Carmel in time to file comments on the new exhibits showing in the galleries of the Carmel Art Association, as well as a show at Site 311 in Pacific Grove.

Brooks photo show at Carmel Valley Manor

A CROSS-SECTION OF 40 years of photographs taken by peninsula lensman William C. Brooks is featured in the art gallery of Carmel Valley Manor. Brooks, who retired last year, photographed celebrities and classic scenic views during his 32-year tenure at the Pebble Beach Camera Shop. His exhibit contains some 21 images. The manor is located five miles east of Highway 1 on Carmel Valley Road, near the fire station.

Art show benefits the sea otter

AN ARTISTIC tribute to the threatened California sea otter will be offered Saturday, May 17, when wildlife artist Charles Frace attends the Monterey Peninsula unveiling of his new limited edition print, Treasures of the Sea.

A reception is planned from 3 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday in the Saturday in the Solarium of the Thunderbird Bookshop in The Barnyard, Highway 1 and Carmel Valley Road, Carmel.

A fund-raising edition of 500 prints has been designated by the artist to benefit Friends of the Sea Otter. The prints are offered for sale at $150 each, of which $100 is tax-deductible.

For more information, call Friends of the Sea Otter at 625-3290, between 11 a.m. and 3 p.m.

Art Notes ...

What I found of particular interest was the use of white areas. He sometimes leaves an entire object in white, perhaps a boat, or in "Solo Flight at Santa Cruz," there are two heads left in this color. I liked the paintings in which he does this. Bill does not use the strong black line as much as in earlier paintings. He relies more on patterning which is especially evident and effective in "Autumn in Maine." New to me, at least, is the aura of blue around some areas. This show, "Running Tides — Rolling Timber," will be up through June 3.

Another solo exhibit, "California Moments," by Joe Tanous, is on the walls in the center gallery at the Carmel Art Association. These prints are monotypes. The original painting is done in oil on glass. There is only one impression. What you get looks almost like a painting, but not quite, so there is a unique quality.

I know the work of many artists, but I do not know of any whose imagery varies as much. Recently Joe had a painting of a large lady in a yellow swimming suit shown in the main gallery. It was satiric and fun. If I did not know that the same artist did these monotypes, I would make no connection. These prints are delicate and poetic. His ocean has movement. His birds soar, wheel, and float. "Migrant" has a surreal quality with birds above and people below. In "My Shoe" the subject fills the whole page so as to speak. The color is subtle, texture adds interest, and it is a shoe that has been walked in. These monotypes will be shown through June 3.

Master printer will lecture

The Friends of Photography and People in Communication Arts will present a slide-illustrated lecture by master printer Jon Goodman at 8 p.m. Thursday, May 15. Admission is free to the lecture, presented in Carpenter Hall of Carmel's Sunset Center, San Carlos at Ninth.

Jon Goodman has resurrected the hand-pulled gravure process, which has been called the most beautiful of the 19th-century photomechanical printing processes.

For more information, contact The Friends of Photography at 624-6330.

NOTICE OF DEATH OF LAURA E. KING, aka LAURA KING, aka LAURA ELIZABETH KING, aka LAURA BOHEN KING AND OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE
Case No. MP 9667

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may be otherwise interested in the will or estate of LAURA E. KING, aka LAURA KING, LAURA ELIZABETH KING, aka LAURA BOHEN KING, a petition has been filed by ROBERT W. BOHEN in the Superior Court of Monterey County requesting that ROBERT BOHEN be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act.

A hearing on the petition will be held on June 13, 1986 at 9:30 a.m. located at 1200 Aguajito Road, Monterey, California 93940.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should either appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court or present it to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in section 700 of the California Probate Code. The time for filing claims will not expire prior to four months from the date of the hearing noticed above.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may serve upon the executor or administrator, or upon the attorney for the executor or administrator, and file with the court with proof of service, a written request stating that you desire special notice of the filing of an inventory and appraisement of estate assets or of the petitions or accounts mentioned in sections 1200 and 1220.5 of the California Probate Code.

THE "CARMEL" LOOK PERSONIFIED
Open House
Sunday 2 to 5 p.m.

Completely rebuilt in 1981, this delightful yellow-white-and-blue cottage just three short blocks north of the Post Office in Carmel is the actual creation of what most people imagine a Carmel cottage should be.

Featuring a large living room with cathedral ceiling, skylight, stone fireplace, and lots of window area, it is bright, cheery, and sunny. A dining area and a separate breakfast area are provided. A very functional, well equipped, and beautifully finished kitchen adjoins a sunny deck.

Two bedrooms—one with the bow window shown—are available, each with its own delightful bath. A stone entrance patio, a stone-floored parking structure, planters and flowers galore are all part of the charm of this cottage—"A Whistle Away." See it offered at $345,000 and located on Second Ave., just one house east of Dolores.

Outstanding Views

The owner has reduced the price of this newly renovated three bedroom, two bath home by $28,000 to $297,000. The essence of Carmel comes through at first sight of the rolled roof and stone fireplace but the view will steal your heart. Looking out of the back windows one gets a sweeping view of village homes and the ocean. The kitchen has new tile, appliances and lots of storage. The existing structure has 1500 square feet but there is room to expand as the home is situated on 3 lots. It has a double carport and lots of mature trees and shrubs. Second south of 2nd Avenue on the west side of Junipero.

Price Reduced $50,000

The owner is serious about selling his Scenic Drive Carmel vacation home and has reduced the price. $695,000 buys this comfortable 3 bedroom, 2 bath home with unlimited ocean views. The structure is in excellent condition and has over 2000 square feet of living area. The large living room has brick fireplace with raised hearth, built-in bookcases, wet bar and enclosed TV cabinets. The downstairs bedroom is 22X15 and has a bath. Other extras include alarm system, planters, delivery entrance, and wall-to-wall carpet. Fourth house south of 11th on Scenic.

Carmel Commercial Lot

Carmel commercial lot in a prime downtown location. The size is 40 X 100 square feet and the property is zoned Service-Commercial for retail business and/or apartments. East side of Lincoln, between 5th and 6th. $375,000.

On the Point

There's more to this 2 bedroom, 2 bath home than meets the eye and it's as charming as its name, "Casa Piccola." The interior has been recently remodeled and updated. There is wall-to-wall carpet, new kitchen counters, and new appliances. Outside, the redwood deck and stone and redwood fence around the front yard were added by the current owner. The master bedroom has its own fireplace and there is a peek of the ocean from the living room with a larger view from the deck and dining room. It's located on Carmel Point just a block from the beach. $325,000.

Cool Canyon Living in PALO COLORADO

Half way between Carmel and Big Sur is beautiful, fern-filled Palo Colorado Canyon. Just a ½ mile east of the Scenic Highway, up the paved road lined with towering redwoods, is a newly expanded and renovated, shingled cottage nestled on its south-facing hillside. Cross over the creek on the new bridge to the parking area adjacent to one of the two detached studios.

Climb the redwood stairs and enter the brand new living room with raised hearth, stone fireplace. Polished, hardwood floors, bay window, game center and sleeping loft above all add to the exceptional charm of this addition.

French doors open to surrounding decks and allow sunlight in to brighten your days. In addition to two bedrooms and two baths on the west end of the house, a sleeping loft is situated above the living room. From the stair landing, is an outside door leading to more decking and the hot tub.

An additional raised-hearth fireplace adds cozy warmth to the country kitchen/dining area. Not pictured is an additional detached studio at the west end of the property. Flexible use areas and convenience to Monterey Peninsula are but two of the many assets of this unusual home. Hank Adams or Linda Mazet in our Coast Properties Division will be happy to show you the property. $390,000.
